PREFACE TO THE REVISED EDITION

THIS revised edition of the List of Inscriptions on Tombs or Monuments in Madras is based primarily on the notes collected by the late Mr. J. J. Cotton, I.C.S., after the publication of the first edition in 1905. These notes were purchased by the Government of Madras from the executors of Mr. Cotton in 1928 and were entrusted to the late Mr. C. W. E. Cotton, C.I.E., I.C.S., for the purpose of bringing out a revised edition. On the death of Mr. C. W. E. Cotton in 1931, the work was entrusted to Mr. P. Macqueen, I.C.S., my predecessor in office. And when Mr. Macqueen left the office in 1935, the work devolved upon me. In this edition are incorporated not only the notes left by Mr. J. J. Cotton but also much useful information collected from various other sources like the old Asiatic Journals, the Madras Almanacs, the old Military and Civil Lists, the List of Marriages by H. Dodwell and the List of Danish Marriages by the Rev. K. Heiberg, etc.

This edition is issued in two volumes. The first volume relates to the City of Madras, French India, Indian States and Fort Marlborough on the West Coast of Sumatra. The second volume relates to the districts of the Madras Presidency. At the end of each volume are printed an index to the names on the inscriptions and an index to the names occurring in the notes. As in the first edition, such of the inscriptions on monuments which are no longer in existence, but which are mentioned in Urquhart's "Oriental Obituary" (1809), have been printed within square brackets. It will be found that in a few cases under the column for inscriptions, certain particulars are printed within round brackets. This indicates that these particulars are not copies of inscriptions, but are only obituary notices collected by Mr. J. J. Cotton.

I have to express my thanks to Lt.-Col. H. Bullock, I.A., a Member of the Indian Historical Records Commission, who kindly read through the form proofs of the first volume and made several valuable suggestions. My thanks are also due to Rev. K. Heiberg of the Danish Mission, Madras, and to the Rev. Father A. S. Colas, the Archbishop of Pondicherry, for furnishing information regarding certain inscriptions, and to Mr. E. Divien, M.A., of the Madras Christian College, for correcting the proof of the matter in French in Volume I. I must also express my indebtedness to Rao Sahib N. Kolu Nair, B.A., and Mr. V. J. George, B.A., DIP. ECON., the former and the present Assistant Curators and to Mr. D. S. Dharmaraj, DIP. ECON., Senior Assistant, and Mr. M. Natesan, B.A., of the Madras Record Office, for helping me in seeing the publication through the press.

INTRODUCTION TO THE FIRST EDITION*

THIS volume contains a select list of monumental inscriptions relating to Europeans buried in the Madras presidency. It includes all epitaphs of adults earlier than 1800 and such entries of later date as possess historical or local interest. Numerous translations from foreign languages have been added, and attention has been paid towards annotating the names of persons and places of importance.

2. At the beginning of the last century an attempt to form a similar collection was made by William Urquhart of Madras in his "Oriental Obituary," printed at the Journal Press in 1809. This "Impartial Compilation," as it is termed on the title page, was originally projected in three volumes, but two only were published. An advertisement to the first number contains the announcement that "volume II is preparing and will be put to press so soon as paper can be procured, at present there being none in Madras which could possibly answer the purpose." It is believed that only two copies of this curious book survive, one in the library of the late Archbishop Goethals at Calcutta and the other in the private collection of Mr. Edward Wenger of the Bengal Secretariat, who has lent his copy for the purposes of the present work. The British Museum possesses only a copy of the first volume. Urquhart's precursor had been Asiaticus, whose "East Indian Chronologist" (1801) "from the commencement of the East India Trade by David and Solomon," and "Monumental Register" (1803) were printed at the Hircarrah Press, Calcutta, by Mr. Hawkesworth. Many of Asiaticus' gleanings were reproduced in 1815 in M. DeRozario's "Complete Monumental Register of epitaphs in or about Calcutta." Lastly in 1848 appeared the time-honoured "Bengal Obituary" of Messrs. Holmes & Co. of Cossitollah. This book was the product of a firm of undertakers, who traced the origin of monuments to the Deluge, "when the rainbow was made or selected as a standing token," and encouraged the public to proper ideas of sepulture by the argument of the resurrection of the body. Since the appearance of this work, only occasional attempts have been made to preserve in print the crumbling memorials of European dead in India. In 1861 Mr. Augustus F. Bellasis of the Bombay Civil Service compiled a monograph on the old tombs at Surat, and in 1877 Mr. Leopold Ludovici, Editor of the "Ceylon Examiner," collected the Dutch inscriptions of that island into the Lapidarium Zeylandicum. Little was done in Madras till Mr. LeFanu in his "Salem Manual" (1883) set the example of registering the names of all Europeans who had found a last resting place in the cemeteries of his district. In 1880 facsimiles of the tombstones round St. Mary's Church, Fort St. George, were executed by the Survey department under the orders of the Duke of Buckingham, who was then Governor. This album was prepared for private circulation, and only two copies were left in Madras. Within the last few years a systematic recension of inscriptions from European graveyards throughout India has taken place at the instance of the Secretary of State, and lists have been published from every district in Madras. The present volume is a selection from those lists with additions and corrections. It is intended as a companion volume to the "List of Inscriptions on Tombs or Monuments in Bengal," edited by Mr. C. R. Wilson in 1896.

3. The history of old Madras is in no small measure written upon its tombstones. Especially interesting are the memorials of the Company's earliest servants. They and their families lie buried in every coast town, and often a ruined cemetery is all that remains of a famous factory. Their Puritan names such as Ordonicus and Tryphena are landmarks which bind together successive generations. Like the Pilgrim Fathers, who colonised America, our stout-hearted forbears in the Land of Regrets were all of them trueborn Englishmen of credit and renown. Indeed, pioneering would seem to be the peculiar province of the Anglo-Saxon all the world over. The Scotchman follows at a later stage in the race. Our original Cape Merchants, Levant Traders and East India Venturers were typical sons of John Bull; men of London, Bristol, Devon, and the Home Counties. As we travel down the centuries, there are associations with many names that have won recognition at home. A descendant of Cromwell in the person of John Russell was President at Fort William in the days of Queen Anne. Another, Nicholas Morse, ruled as Governor in Fort St. George almost at the same time that Milton's grandson, Caleb Clarke, was parish clerk of St. Mary's, Madraspatam. In the shadow of the towers of the High Court sleeps little David, the four-year old son of Elihu Yale. His father is remembered as the founder of an enlightened university and forgotten as the Governor of a benighted presidency. Every schoolboy knows that Thackeray was the son and grandson of Bengal Collectors; but the tomb at Ootacamund of Sir Henry Davison, the Madras Chief Justice, to whom he dedicated the "Virginians," is as unremembered as the grave of his uncle

Webb Thackeray at Cuddapah. Another grave interesting to lovers of literature is that of Charles Reade's civilian brother at Calicut, laid to rest beside Collector Conolly who was hacked to pieces by Moplas in 1855. This presidency can also claim a brother-in-law of Sir Walter Scott in Charles Carpenter, a former Commercial Resident of Salem; while at St. Mark's Church, Bangalore, is a tablet to the poet's son and heir, a Colonel of Hussars, who perished on his voyage to the Cape, and another son sleeps in far-off Teheran. Trichinopoly has memories only for Heber, who, after three short years of India, died there in 1826; so that few visit its Fort Church, in the chancel of which reposes Rebecca Darke, a lady who has some claim on posterity as being the grand-mother of Julia, Lady Peel, wife of a Premier and mother of a Speaker of the House of Commons. In Madras the tombstone of Hugh Boyd, a reputed Junius, has entirely disappeared. There is no trace of any monument on the solitary Ganjam coast to Alexander Macrabie, the devoted brother-in-law and adherent of Francis, an even better claimant to the authorship of "Woodfall's letters." A son-in-law of de Quincey lies buried at Madras in the person of Colonel Baird Smith of the Bengal Engineers. Two of Addison's brothers, one a Governor of Madras, the other a free merchant, died at Fort St. George. It was the inheritance of the Governor's fortune that enabled the essayist to bring off his marriage with the Dowager Countess of Warwick, the "Chloe" of Holland House with whom he had so long been in love. A son of Charles Dickens, for whom a cadetship had been procured on the Bengal establishment, finds a last resting place in Calcutta. His godfather, Walter Savage Landor, in England paid the tribute of verse to Rose Aylmer, who came out to her uncle, a Judge of the Supreme Court at Fort William, and died there in her twenty-first year "in the bloom of youth and in the possession of every accomplishment that could gladden or embellish life." The same writer in his "lines to Theodosia Garrow," the kinswoman of Anthony Trollope, celebrates a near relative of British Nabobs, of whom three repose in the cemetery beside the Coom. Madras itself is not without a poet. In 1803 John Leyden, M.D., of St. Andrew's arrived on the Coromandel Coast as Assistant Surgeon and ended his life at Java in 1811, bewailed by Scott and Malcolm. Another well-remembered lament is that of Matthew Arnold over his brother in the Punjab Educational Service, the author of "Oakfield or Fellowship in the East," who died at Gibraltar, on his journey home, and sleeps off his sorrows there beside "Lucknow" Kavanagh. South India has as many classic memories in her birth places as in her death places. Those who have read Lawrence Sterne and remember his heroine Eliza of the Sentimental Journey, the pure and sprightly Eliza with all her refined tastes and elegant accomplishments, will marvel to call to mind that it was in no more magnificent city than Anjengo that Elizabeth Draper, née Sclater, was born in 1744. Nineteen years passed and Tranquebar, the Queen of the Coromandel Coast, gave birth to Catherine Noel Werlée, "cette rare et nonchalante beauté indienne," destined to bewitch historical characters of high renown. Half a century later at Hyderabad in the Deccan was born Kitty Kirkpatrick, the heroine of one romance and the offspring of another. Other names there are that have made history as well as literature. More than one mouldering monument testifies to the men of the coast army who fell fighting the battles of the Carnatic under Lawrence and Clive and Dalton and Draper. Our public highways are strewn with broken-down memorials to others who died on the march and made the roadside their resting place. Nor were all these heroes Englishmen. Upon Seringapatam tombstones may be read the foreign names of De Meuron's Regiment and its officers, names which have disappeared so long ago from the Army List that few of us know now-a-days that such a corps of Switzers ever formed part of our army during twenty most eventful years of India's Military history. Even in the paths of peace there are notabilities: the great and good Munro; Governors Morse, Ward, Adam, Lords Pigot and Hobart; Bishops Corrie, Dealtry and Caldwell; missionaries like Swartz, Ziegenbalg, Noble and the Jesuit Beschi; artists of the calibre of Colonel Swain Ward, Lieutenant Payne and the miniaturist Casselli; surgeons like Anderson, Harris, Griffith and Pasley, worthy followers of the succession which began with Hamilton, Boughton and Holwell and has produced in our own day warriors such as Brydon and writers such as Busted; General Carnac, Clive's colleague at Plassey* whose wife's portrait by Reynolds adorns the Tate Gallery; the DeMorgans, father and son; Binny, Parry and DeMonte, founders of the three great merchant houses of Madras; the Palmers and Rumbolds of Hyderabad, and a host of others. The Civil Service is well represented by young Lushington, Heber's companion on his tour in Upper India; by a Roebuck, uncle of the Sheffield reformer; by F. W. Ellis, whose unassisted scholarship is so warmly praised by Burnell, the Prince of palæographers; by Josiah Webbe; by Rous Peter "the Pandyan"; and by a multitude of once potent civilian names. Then was the Augustan age of John Company; and among its ruling families ran some of the bluest blood in the three kingdoms. Englishmen of birth were indeed no rare exceptions in India a hundred years ago. The most noteworthy feature in the Allahabad graveyard was a broken column over the resting place of a FitzClarence, brother of the Earl of Munster, and son of his Majesty King William the Fourth. An old Bengal Civil List counts no less than nine baronets and eleven younger sons of peers in its ranks. The annals of the Indian Civil Service have yet to be written : but to their chronicler the " Book of the Dead " is likely to prove a genealogical paper of more than ordinary importance.

4. As the oldest European presidency, Madras is exceptionally rich in memorials of other Western nations than our own. The Portuguese entered India as far back as 1498 with (as has been said) the sword in one hand and the crucifix in the other ; but their inscriptions are very few. If we except the epitaphs at Goa, San Thomé and Cochin, no monuments to the contemporaries of Camoens are traceable. The Cochin slab, dated 1524, recently disinterred near the new Port office, is apparently the oldest memento mori of this nation in the peninsula. The Luz tablet is older, but it commemorates, not a death, but the foundation of a Church to our Lady of Light, perhaps the Madre de Deos from whom the word Madras is sometimes fancifully derived. At Colombo in 1898 an even more ancient stone was turned up near the old breakwater, bearing the Lusitanian arms and the date 1501. It seems probable that in India, as in Ceylon, Portuguese monuments were destroyed wholesale by the Dutch. There is the recorded testimony of an early Dutch writer Saar that those at Jaffna were broken into pieces by the sailors with sledge hammers. In the south of the peninsula, Mylapore Cathedral and the Franciscan Church at Cochin contain the best collections. For a long time a Cochin stone bearing the name " Vasco " was regarded as commemorating Vasco da Gama's death, which occurred there in 1524, until the slab was properly examined by the late Rev. A. F. Sealy of Ernakulam College. But although the relics of their race may be few, the influence of Portugal upon Southern India was very marked, and it has contributed to the speech of to-day words that are in hourly use from Calcutta to Peshawar. The boat call of converted fishermen on the côte de la Pêcherie is still " Javier, Javier," though the cry has been less romantically interpreted as a corruption of the Hindustani " Jahiye, Jahiye." At one time Portuguese threatened to become the lingua franca of the Malabar and Coromandel Coasts, and as late as 1776 we find the epitaph of Danish Maderup at Tranquebar composed in that tongue. This circumstance takes us back to a period when Tranquebar Missionaries preached in a periwig in Portuguese, and read from their prayer books an " oraçao por a illustrissima Companhia da India Oriental." The altar text in their little church is written in Portuguese and the next village on the road to Karikal is called " la grande Aldéc," aldea being Portuguese for village. A favourite Quietorium of the " naturals de Madrastapatam " was at St. Thomas' Mount, where it is recorded that one lady wished to be buried on the steps leading to the summit, because there the devout passer-by might read her epitaph and in his charity pray for the peace of her soul.

5. Mention of the Mount leads on to mention of the Madras Armenians, whose earliest inscriptions are found there. These merchants from Persia are a practically extinct colony now-a-days ; but their little cemeteries are a witness that they once had a share in the commerce of the settlement. They settled permanently at Madras in the year 1666, and from 1688 are found in the service of the Company, who, for reasons of economy, had issued orders that, instead of multiplying European agents in India, Asiatics should be employed. In Madras the most notable " Armeniorum fautor " is Coja Petrus Usan, the builder of the Marmalong bridge in 1726, whose documents regarding the Usan charity are still to be seen in the Saidapet Collector's office. He lies interred at Vepery and the superlatives on his epitaph testify to his numerous virtues. The church of his countrymen in Armenian street, Black Town*, was erected in 1772 on the site of an old burial ground and replaced a demolished place of worship on the Esplanade which dated back to some sixty years earlier. Several of its pavement graves, such as the family vault of Shameer Sultan, are very remarkable. One slab within its recess bears the name of the Rev. Arratoon Shumavon, " by the grace of God a priest from Shiraz " and printer of the first known Armenian journal. In Fort St. George, at Masulipatam and Negapatam, are other slabs with metrical verses in Latin and the vernacular. The Armenians have ever been a purely commercial people in this country. They built no cities and carved out for themselves no empire ; but to England they have rendered services which deserve remembrance and are fitly chronicled in Mr. Mesrobian J. Seth's " History of the Armenians in India." Their most remarkable tombstone is set not in the East, but at St. Denis in the West. " Cy gist le très noble et très excellent Prince Lyon de Lusignan, quint roy latin du royaume d'Arménie qui rendit l'âme à Dieu à Paris le XXIX jour de Novembre l'an de grâce MCCCXIII."

6. Of all the European powers that held sway in India, none more genuinely felt and observed the culte des morts than the Dutch. In his famous essay on the Tombs in Westminster Abbey (Spectator, No. 26), Addison has remarked on this characteristic : and Pepys' Diary contains a similar comment. Their regal mausoleums at Surat long ago attracted the attention of travellers like Dr. John Fryer (1682) and Ovington (1689) ; the latter of whom mentions a custom maintained by Dutchmen in his day of celebrating convivial feasts over the tomb of a toper of facetious memory where, "remembering their departed companion, they sometimes forgot themselves." Of their disused cemeteries in South India, the Pulicat graveyard, which has a well-preserved lychgate of 1656 flanked by two standing stone skeletons, is the most remarkable. Over one of its oldest graves may be seen inscribed the letters V.O.C. (Vereenigde Oostendische Compagnie), the familiar monogram of the Netherlands United East India Company. On another slab is a pictorial representation of the Fort of Castel Geldria, which Mr. Rea has reproduced in his volume of facsimiles. The Dutch stones here and elsewhere were elaborately carved by masons, who graduated in their profession before coming out to India, and handed down much of their skill to Hindoo craftsmen. The only European relic at Cape Comorin is an imposing granite block to the perpetual honour of a faithful Dutch factor. At Porto Novo the bas-relief over the grave of Matthys Pfeiffer's wife gives a perfect picture of an eighteenth century piper playing on a recorder and dressed in a long-flapped coat with old fashioned stockings and shoes and armed with a rapier. Further north at Bunder is the figure of a bygone mynheer wearing a three-cornered hat of the kind in which Gulliver is usually represented, and closely resembling the famous European head in one of the upper niches of the Tanjore temple. In Wolfendahl's Church at Colombo are the state tombs of deceased Governors of that island, ornamented with heraldic emblems of the highest degree of excellence. Pieces of quaintly sounding rhyme are often added; and the structures themselves are more than emblematic of the words of the sculptors that they will endure to the "laaste opstaanding."

7. After Dutch settlements it is proper to speak of French; for the two nations lived close together. No trace can now be found of any tombs to the pioneers of French enterprise in India, though a broken Tamil tablet in the precinct of St. Mary's, Madras, records the name of a native Christian founder of the Pondichéry Company. Several of the English gravestones brought from the esplanade burial ground bear marks of the English cannon balls which helped to keep Lally out of Fort St. George in 1758. But the only extant memorial to a Frenchman of that period is Bussy's little known grave opposite Pondichéry Cathedral. Of the captains courageous who later sought service in the armies of native princes, many died in India. Charles Babel, dit Zephyr, general to the forces of Basalat Jung, was buried at Guntoor in 1770 and has these letters commendatory over his headstone: "Chéri de Fortune et favori de Mars, La Victoire suivit partout ses étendards; D'Hercule il égala les travaux et la gloire, Mais une mort trop cruelle a trompé notre espoir." A still more famous soldier of fortune is Raymond, the eponymous hero of the Nizam's Mysoram (Monsieur Raymond) Regiment. He sleeps on a lonely eminence outside Hyderabad where the anniversary of his death is still celebrated by Mahomedans. Further south at Udayagiri is the family vault of Eustache De Launoy, who drilled the defenders of the lines of Travancore and may well have been a relation of the Governor of the Bastille. Even Ramnad, at the very end of the peninsula, possesses the grave of Manuel Martinz, a condottiere like de Boigne from Savoy, whose kindly eccentricities in his old age are amusingly recorded in the military reminiscences of Colonel Welsh. And here and there, as at Tummaracode in the Palnad, are the scattered sepulchres of adventurers who have left no other memorials of themselves than that they died there.

8. Cemeteries to-day are the only witness that there ever was a Danish East India Company. Tranquebar has become even more of a city of the dead than Serampore in Bengal; and is famous solely for its missionaries. No less than seventeen of these Halle magisters lie buried in its graveyards, and pious hands annually repaint the letters on their tombs. There rests Ziegenbalg, the father of Protestant missions in India, who died in harness at the early age of 35. There Swartz began the career which ended at Tanjore in 1798. There it was that Rottler, Gericke and Kiernander laid the foundations of their reputation. In latter days, the seniors of the mission turned their attention to scientific research, and this brought them wide celebrity even in Europe. An even more eminent name than theirs in science is that of the Frenchman Jacquemont, who was cut off like Csoma de Körös in the land of his sojourning. The French Academy conveyed home his remains in 1881, thus exemplifying the motto over Claude Lorraine's tomb in the Church of Trinità dei Monti at Rome; "La nation française n'oublie pas ses enfants célèbres, même quand ils sont morts à l'étranger." At Tranquebar two celebrated laymen found their last home: Colonel Mühlendorf, from whose veins the blood-royal of Denmark has flowed into several Madrassi families; and Sundt, whose sister became the wife of Blücher's brother.

9. The Hebrew cemetery in Mint street and the Beth-haim of the white Jews at Cochin preserve the epitaphs of another interesting community. America, which gave to India Ochterlony and Alexander Gardner, who lived for many years as a fighting Afghan chief, is represented in southern districts by a Bellary cotton-planter and a commandant of Ganjam pensioners; Italy, the mother-country of Avitabile, Ventura and the Filoses, by Constantine Beschi and Nicolao Manucci, though the latter's gravestone at San Thomé is wanting; Greece by a seventeenth century Sindbad whose monument has found its way to the presidency Museum. Foreigners of every nationality occur in the old East India Company's service. In 1764, remarks Niebuhr (father of the historian), its army possessed Polish, Swiss, Dutch, and German officers. Among those buried in Madras are Count de Warren and Baron von Kutzleben; while the Bengal Native Infantry once contained the name of Captain Georges François Grand, afterwards a Writer and the first husband of the future Princesse de Talleyrand.

10. That "peculiar people," the Huguenots, sent no inconsiderable contribution to the ranks of South Indian notabilities. The Carnacs, Chardins, Torrianos, Trapauds, Mangins, Cauliers, Amsincks and DeVismes were all members of refugee families. Of these, the Carnacs became such a power in the country that according to a popular saying they were credited with being the origin of the name Carnatic. Lord Pigot had Huguenot blood in his veins through his mother Frances Godde, tirewoman to the Queen, who is misspelt in the Baronetages as Goode. Another Governor of Fort St. George, Charles Smith, was the descendant of a Huguenot emigrant Lefevre, who took the name of Smith (faber).

11. The literature of the tombstone may often be turned to capital account. Unlike the paper of the record-room, these massive slabs, with their thick lettering, are practically indestructible, if they but succeed in escaping the privy paw of the native dhoby. For example, the Pulicat inscriptions are first hand contemporary authority towards the yet unwritten history of the Netherlands Company. Many an exact merchant inscribed his pedigree on his gravestone; and such statements of fact are important to genealogists. Some there are that have left more than a name behind them. Lawson's Bay, Vizagapatam, perpetuates the memory of a "country captain" of local renown. Robert Sloper, who rests at Tranquebar among the missionaries, founded Sloper street, Cuddalore, and there his wife Kitoria reposes. One chief of a settlement "though without the wealth of a Governor, was rich in the real worth of a man." Others, like Paul Benfield and Mr. Snodgrass of Rambha, tasted more literally of the fruit of the pagoda tree. At Surat the Latin hexameters over Christopher Oxenden (1659), that most brotherly of brothers, tell us more of the factory life of our predecessors than many pages of history. "Do you ask, my masters, what is your profit and loss? You have gained sorrow, he has lost his life, but per contra let him write 'death to me is gain'." Often the cause of dying is described with old-fashioned quaintness. "1793, August 14th," records Asiaticus, "Mrs. Agatha Andrews. She died of pure sensibility." At Guntoor a young civilian fell a sacrifice "to the incautious use of castor-oil nuts." At Arnee two commanding officers departed this life "most suddenly" by reason of duels. At Negapatam lies a fond wife "whose soul, perfect in all earthly ordained virtue, departed at the early call of its guardian author for its next assigned function in his eternal Kingdom." At another place an eminent lady's "smile was the beam of benevolence, her heart the soul of sympathy, and the uniform complacency of her temper illumined her countenance with the blended ray of sensibility and virtue." Even in their epitaphs do our ancestors give us a taste of their quality.

12. In the following pages, notes have been added, wherever possible, for the information of the reader. A number of these are by Mr. H. E. A. Cotton. Assistance has also been obligingly rendered by (amongst others) Rev. H. Jensen; Father van de Westelaken and Mr. R. Morris, Collector of Kistna; Rev. A. M. Teixeira; Mr. M. J. Seth; and Mr. H. LeFanu. The late Mr. A. T. Pringle, the Rev. Frank Penny and Mrs. Frank Penny have kindly read the proofs and made many valuable suggestions. The full names of officers, whose initials alone appear on their tombstones, have been traced, wherever possible, from old Army Lists. The index has been prepared by Mr. E. Gaudoin and Mr. Coombes. Thanks are due to Mr. R. Hill and Mr. T. Fisher for the careful printing of the work.

COMPOUND OF ST. MARY'S CHURCH IN FORT ST. GEORGE. (Consecrated in 1680.)
These tombstones were removed from a cemetery now occupied by the Law Courts, once known as the Monument Esplanade. In 1782 they were temporarily removed from the compound of St. Mary's Church to be used as gun platforms at the time of Hyder Ali's invasion and were not replaced until 1807, by which time many had been broken and others had disappeared.
1	5th Aug. 1652.	ELIZABETH BAKER.	Memoriæ sacrum dominæ ELIZABETHÆ BAKER domini Aaronis Baker (Anglorum hisce locis negotiantium præsidis) uxoris dilectissimæ, quæ marito ad Indos [navi] ganti, relicto solo p[atrio] sese iungebat c[omite]m illumque proxime prom[ontorium] bonæ spei spei optimæ marino partu be[abat], sed tandem post longas pelagi minas, insalubremque Iavæ ærem, quæ libens unâ passa est, tristissimum pro cœlis (pro quibus solis voluit) moriens relinquebat Augusti 5 <sup>o</sup> An <sup>o</sup> 1652.

The lower corner of the tombstone is worn away, and the missing letters are conjectured. It bears a coat of arms. Aaron Baker was the first President and Governor of Fort St. George. He arrived from Bantam by the Roebuck on September 1st, 1652. From the original correspondence collection in the India Office, 2274 and 2294, the Roebuck appears to have left England at the end of 1651, quitting the Isle of Wight on December 30th and clearing the Land's End on January 1st, 1651-2. She passed the Cape on April 22nd, 1652, came in sight of Java on June 17th, and anchored in Bantam Roads on June 26th. Having embarked President Baker, she sailed again on the 31st July, and reached Madras on September 1st, 1652. The date is confirmed by a letter from Bantam to Madras, dated February 15th, 1652-53 (O.C. No. 2284) which acknowledges the receipt of a letter from Fort St. George, dated September 22nd, 1652, stating the safe arrival of the Roebuck on the 1st idem. In a subsequent letter from the President and Council at Surat to the Company, dated January 17th, 1652-53 (O.C. No. 2297) mention is made of Mrs. Baker's death during the voyage, but the date of the Roebuck's arrival is post-dated by one day. "Your ship Endeavour. . . came from Bantam with the Roebuck, on whom went President Baker and his family to Fort St. George . . . The 2nd November from the coast were advised of the arrival of ships Roebuck and Bonetoe and that President Baker by the way from Bantam lost his wife, who died about ten days after they came from Bantam. They arrived at your fort the 2nd September." The words of the epitaph suggest that Mrs. Baker died after childbirth. Her husband continued in office until 1655, when he was succeeded by H. Greenhill. "On the 20th January 1655, Aaron Baker sailed for England in the ship Katherine relinquishing the Government to Greenhill. After his retirement he married Anne Cobham . . . He survived his two sons, Thomas and Aaron, and died in 1683 at the age of seventy-three. He was buried at the parish church of Dunchideock, near Exeter, and the bulk of his property passed to a nephew, the Rev. Aaron Baker of Alphington."

There is a document of that year signed "President Aaron Baker, Agent Henry Greenhill and William Gurney." Greenhill administered the settlement until the 1st September 1652, when Fort St. George replaced Bantam as the Company's eastern centre of Government, and President Baker arrived from Java and assumed charge. Greenhill remained at Madraspatam, retaining the title of Agent throughout the period of Baker's rule. He was one of the first settlers in the Fort and built a house of his own on the river bank known as Agent Greenhill's House. A good name is better then a precious oymntment and the day of death then the day of one's birth. Eccle. 7. 1. The memory of ye just is blessed. Prov. 10. 7. The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance. Ps 112. 6. George Foxcroft was appointed Agent and Governor on the resignation of Sir Edward Winter, and took over charge of the factory in June 1665. In the following September, he was forcibly deposed by Winter and kept in imprisonment, together with his son Nathaniel, for three years. The Directors, on receiving news of what had occurred, sent out Commissioners with a formidable armament of ships and instructions to blockade the Fort. But Winter yielded up peaceable possession. Foxcroft was released and reinstated on the 22nd August 1668, and remained in office until 1670, when he was relieved by Sir William Langhorne. His son, Nathaniel, died just as they were on the point of leaving India together. An investigation was held into the conduct of Sir Edward Winter, who was exonerated but ordered to return home on one of the Company's ships. Winter died in England in 1685 and is buried in St. Mary's Church, Battersea.

5	9th Feb. 1680.	JOHN AUGER ..	[Here lieth the body of JOHN AUGER, who departed this life, the 54th year of his age, on the 9th of February Anno Domini 1679-80.]

This is the oldest inscription preserved in Urquhart's "Oriental Obituary" (1809) of those which have since disappeared. "John Augur, an antient man marryed to an English woman; keepes a house of entertainment upon sufferance, having been long a souldier and no other way to live." Pub. cons. 29th February 1675-6.

- 6 28th May 1680. JOSEPH HYNMERS. The following inscription is taken from the pyramidical moniment on the north Esplanade:—Here lyes interred the body of JOSEPH HYNMERS who served the Rt. Honble English East India Company several years as second in council of Fort St. George, in which station he departed this life on the 28th of May 1680.

This tombstone and that of David Yale (No. 15) are in the High Court compound.

Catherine, the widow of Joseph Hynmers, married on November 4th, 1680 Elihu Yale (Governor of Fort St. George from July 25th, 1687, to October 23rd, 1692), of whom it is recorded on his tombstone in Wrexham churchyard (July 18th, 1721) that he was "born in America, in Europe bred, In Afric travel'd and in Asia wed." By this marriage there was one son, who died an infant, and three daughters: the eldest married Dudley North of the family which later produced the famous Lord North and the present Earls of Guildford; the second, Anne, married a younger son of the first Duke of Devonshire; and the youngest, Ursula, died unmarried in 1721 a few days after her father at the family seat of her sister Lady Anne Cavendish in Bucks. The line of direct descendants of Elihu Yale terminated in 1829 with the death of his great grandson Dudley Long North, who had reached some distinction as a member of Parliament and a friend and companion of Dr. Johnson, and is therefore embalmed in the pages of Boswell. He was the donor to Yale College of Enoch Zeeman's portrait of Governor Yale, painted in London 1717.

- 7 14th Feb. 1682. ELIZABETH ALFORD. Henry Alford's first wife Elizabeth died February 14th, 1682, his second wife Elizabeth died August 15th, 1687, and his son Robert died 2nd September 1688, a year old.

A fragment to the memory of the first and second wives of Henry Alford. He married Elizabeth Mellish November 10th, 1681; she died a year later; and was buried on February 15th, 1682. In February 1683 he married Elizabeth Lott who died in August 1687 and was buried on August 15, 1687. (Thomas Lott Ensign died September 17th, 1682). In 1688 he married a third wife, Elizabeth Brereton. Alford, who was a Company's servant, died in May 1692 and was buried in May 30, 1692. His widow married Mathew Empson the following year. Empson was in Council with Thomas Pitt, Governor from July 7th, 1698, to September 18th, 1709. M. Empson died January 8, 1708 and his wife Elizabeth Empson died May 3, 1698. Pitt was succeeded by Gulston Addison, the brother of the Essayist, who died at Madras in the following month (on the 17th October 1709). No trace of his grave remains, nor of his brother's Lancelot Addison, fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, who came out with a licence to trade as a free merchant and was buried in the Fort Cemetery in August 1710. One Robert Alford was buried on September 2nd 1698.

septimo Octobris die 1696. Mementote præpositorum vestrorum qui vobis locuti sunt verbum Dei, quorum imitami fidem, contemplantos quis fuerit exitus conversationis ipsorum. Heb. 13, 7.]

The tombstone has disappeared since Urquhart recorded it.

RICHARD ELLIOTT was appointed chaplain for Masulipatam in 1677, and succeeded Richard Portman at Fort St. George in 1681. Here he remained till 1696 when he died—the fourth Chaplain to die at the Fort. He was educated at Eton and King's College Cambridge; he was elected King's scholar 1666, graduated B.A., and elected to a Fellowship in 1669; proceeded M.A. 1674; ordained 1675. He is said to have been born in London. He was unmarried and therefore remained a Fellow of King's until his death. When the Company wrote to King's College to announce his death, the Secretary was instructed to say that Mr. Elliott had been 'the instrument of great good in his place.' In a letter which he wrote to the Provost of King's in Feb. 1693-4 he mentions his brother in London. By will he bequeathed £1,500 together with all arrears of college dues at the time of his death to the College for the purchase of advowsons. The bequest amounted to £1,681 13s 11d. Amongst the livings purchased was that of Great Greenford, Middlesex, which was held for many years by Edward Terry an earlier Company's Chaplain. Richard Elliott and his benefaction are still duly commemorated on Founder's Day at King's.

John Evans, the first chaplain in "the Bay," and afterwards Bishop of Bangor and of Meath in succession or as is more probable since Trenchfield's wife in the Government records is invariably called a castez (pure Portugese), Evans married Trenchfield's sister Bridget who was in the fort in 1680. It was probably this "buiassy politick padre" who wrote his epitaph which resembles that over Job Charnock in Calcutta: qui quipostquam in solo non suo peregrinatus esset diu, reversus est domum suam æternitatis 1692. Trenchfield is repeatedly mentioned by Hedges and was a member of his Council at Hooghly. He was with Charnock through the events of 1686-88. |

Company's service, and many in Council at Fort St. George, with the general character of an honest man.

Fowke married Anne May, December 21st, 1713. Their son Joseph, born October 1716, married Elizabeth Walsh May 7th, 1750. Her mother, Elizabeth Maskelyne, was aunt to Clive's wife, whose brother was a civil servant. Clive's marriage entry runs: "Robert Clive, Esq., and Margaret Maskelyne, February 18th, 1753, by Mr. Fabricius."

Randall Fowke, who was 'discharged from the Gunroom crew' in 1703, was appointed Factor in 1711, and a Councillor five years later.

Domingo Mendes had a house in York street, rented at one pagoda in 1688. The coat of arms bears a curious picture of a church, probably St. Andrew's in the Fort, shortly afterwards demolished.

Lector quid cumulas argenti pondus et auri, Virtutes veras accipe divitias; Omnia cui vivunt ora me cernere regem.

The use of the rare Latin word "labili" is noticeable. The Cherimani or Xeremani are the famous Armenian family of Shahriman. They profess the Catholic faith "ex illustri Xerimanorum stirpe in Persia oriundi sed vera fide magis laudandi" as recorded on a Calcutta tombstone. In Julfa they built their own church and a Hammam known as Shahriman's Hammam. A branch of the family is settled in Venice.
The translation of the Armenian part of this epitaph is as follows:— "This is the tomb and resting place of one of noble birth; his name is called Sahak, son of Khojah Zachariah, who is of the family of Shahriman of Julfa, and he was 39 years of age when he delivered his soul to the Lord. In the year 1184 of the Armenian era, 6th Damah."

joined the service as ninth member of council.

The Burial Register simply describes him as gunner of the place, by which is meant commandant of the Fort artillery, but he had evidently made himself useful in other respects to the two Governors mentioned in the inscription, George Morton Pitt (May 14th, 1730, to January 23rd, 1735) and Richard Benyon (January 23rd, 1735, to January 17th, 1744).

When supercargo, of the China ship Hertford, he was admitted factor in 1719 "as being well skilled in both the French and Portuguese languages." He married Susanna Catharina de Dorpere, April 4th, 1725. The Richard Torriano, writer, among the Black Hole victims, must have been his son. Another of the name, Charles, was in the Madras Artillery in 1756; and was probably related to the Bombay officer, Captain John Samuel Torriano, who successfully defended Onore against Tippoo in 1783. Another Torriano, William Harcourt, was in the Madras Civil Service, 1766 to 1807. His wife Lydia died at Nogatpatam, October 17th, 1795, aged 38 (No. 2511).

The Morse family were cloth makers of Dedham in Essex and had no arms. Nicholas Morse was the Governor alluded to by Macaulay, who befriended Clive and gave him the run of his library, thereby enabling him to acquire the only book learning he ever possessed. In 1746 he surrendered Madras to La Bourdonnais, and was sent to Pondicherry where, according to the story, he and his council were marched through the streets in triumphal procession. This capitulation is commemorated in more than one French pictorial print of the period: and the keys of Fort St. George were to be seen till recently at Pondicherry. Morse was the son of Nicholas Morse by his wife Jane Lloyd grand daughter of Henry Ireton and the great great grandson of Oliver Cromwell, through the Protector's daughter Bridget, who married Colonel Ireton. Bridget Ireton's grand daughter, Jane Lloyd, married a Morse and became the mother of Nicholas, Daniel and three daughters. 1773. Major in the Honourable Company's Service, who departed this life the 8th of November Anno Domini 1773, aged 31 years.

The stream that winds majestic o'er the plain,
Adorns the prospect and delights the swain ;
If chance the Summer leaves its channel dry,
The village mourns its absence with a sigh :

Such sighs, alas !, with Anguish fraught prevail'd,
When Life's warm stream in MADGE's bosom fail'd,
No more his course shall Friendship's eye pursue,
No more be brighten'd with the pleasing view !

Here MADGE, thou sleep'st ; where now unconquer reign

Thy daring Spirit and thy Martial vein ?

Ah ! what avails that covetous of praise

Thou twind'st the Scholar's with the Soldier's bays.

Major Madge was in Command of the 12th Sepoy Battalion of the Madras Army. His relative, Captain E. H. Madge, of the 19th Foot commanded at Fort MacDowall, Kandy (1803) and is mentioned in MacFarlane's "Indian Empire," Tennent's "Ceylon," Pridham's "Historical Sketch," Cordiner's "Description of Ceylon," and other works. The latter's sons, John and James, are said to have given its name to Madge's Lane, Calcutta.

In the Asiatic Annual Register for 1807 at page 203 is an account of the C. in C.'s (Frederick, Augustus Prince Regent), 13th January 1806 ; in the final orders on the Court martial held on Captain Madge in Colombo, H.M. does not consider him a fit person to bear H.M.'s Commission. The order is that he should retire from service, selling his commission at the regulated price.

Christian Frederick Swartz and William Chambers were the ex-cutors of his estate.

"Two of the daughters one of whom was married to the Rev. Basil Wood died of a decline. The son who followed the profession of his gallant father is now a Lieut. General in the Army and still retains a pleasing remembrance of his venerable friend" (Pearson's Life of Swartz, pp. 212, 305).

- 144 23rd Sept. GILBERT and SUSAN This stone will not want power to melt or virtue to amend 1781. PASLEY. the heart. It marks the grave of the common friend of 17th Feb. mankind. It records the memory of the skilful physician 1782. GILBERT PASLEY; and SUSAN HANNAH, the only daughter of Gilbert and Hannah Pasley. Gilbert Pasley obiit 23rd
Sept. 1781, ætatis 48. His daughter 17th Feb. 1782, aged 5 months and 4 days.

Gilbert Pasley married Miss Hannah Dashwood September 6th, 1778. It was on his recommendation that Lord Pigot was moved from St. Thomas' Mount to Government House, Madras, shortly before his death in 1777. He was brother of Admiral Sir Thomas Pasley, Bart., and of Margaret, mother of Sir John Malcolm. Gilbert Pasley's sister Margaret married George Malcom, and it was to the care of the Pasleys at Madras that her son the famous Sir John Malcolm was consigned when a cadet of 13 years old. His diminutive appearance on entering the service led one of the Directors at the time of his application to ask him "what would you do if you were to meet Hyder Ali?" "Do," he replied, "why, Sir, I would cut off his head." This show of pluck was deemed sufficient and he was passed in spite of his youth. Sir John was one of sixteen children, and it is a remarkable occurrence that three brothers Sir John (1769-1833), Sir Pulteney (Admiral, 1768-1838) and Sir Charles (Vice-Admiral, 1782-1851) were honoured on one and the same occasion with the dignity of Commander of the Bath. Pasley's widow married May 27th, 1782, Thomas Elliot Ogilvie, C. S.

Another George Pasley married at Poonamallee Anna Gee on February 28, 1796. He died on March 13, 1798. (He was a civil servant. He was in June 1794 'Coroner of Madraspatnam'). Mr. Robert Campbell was married to Miss Eliza Pasley at Itchapore on 2nd August 1798, by Thomas Snodgrass, Collector. On 21st June 1816, at Marylebone Church, Charles Pasley of Gloucester Place, Portman Square, Major in the service of the East India Company and late Chargé d'Affaires at the Court of Persia married Mary, eldest daughter of Simon M'Tavish of Montreal in Canada and of Dunardry, North Britain (Asiatic Journal, July 1817).

- 145 *27th Sept. WILLIAM ROXBURGH. WILLIAM, son of Dr. W. ROXBURGH, aged 4 months and 1781. 20 days.

This is a child of the famous Indian Botanist, to whose memory stands a stone pillar in the Calcutta Botanical Gardens with the following beautiful inscription from the pen of Bishop Heber: "Quisquis ades, si locus suavitate mentem permulcet aut pie sentias de deo, habendus in honore tui ROXBURGHUS, horum hortorum olim praeffectus, vir scientiae botanicae laude florens idemque amoenitatum agrestium summus artifex; conservat cinerem patria, hic viget ingenium; tu fave et perfrue. Posuere superstites, amici MDCCCXXII A.D."

Maj.-General Burton in his Reminiscences of South India who was stationed with the 13th N.I. at Samulcottah in 1842 or 3 and lived in the house which had once belonged to Dr. Roxburgh states:

"and the garden which was a very good one held many rare and valuable trees, fruit bearing as well as others. There was one thing on the premises which might had better been away—no other than the tomb of the Doctor's wife, which stood exactly opposite to the front floor and not 5 yards away from it! A strange and unpleasant crotchet of the Doctor to deposit the remains of his deceased spouse in such a place! To remove the tomb (an oblong stone structure) would have shocked the prejudice of many of my neighbours; I therefore did the next best thing, and trained a fine Rangoon creeper over the tomb which in a few months was completely hidden by the pink and white flowers of the fast growing plant."

* Rev. C. H. Malden's List of Burials at Madras gives 23rd September 1781 as the date of his burial.

204 19th Oct. HUGH BOYD .. [HUGH BOYD, Master Attendant of Madras, aged 48 years.]

"Mr. Boyd left an amiable and accomplished widow and two promising and affectionate children to lament his loss."

Lo ! behold in robes of woe

Genius, wit and learning go :

Genius sad no longer smiles,

Wit distressed forgets his wiles

Majestic learning in sober state moves.

Hugh Boyd, the reputed Junius, was the second son of Alexander Macauley of county Antrim and Miss Boyd of Ballycastle. He was born at Ballycastle in October 1746. He was a school-fellow of Grattan and a protégé of Flood. Left nearly destitute by the death of his father at an early age, he chose the law as his profession and went to London, where he became acquainted with Goldsmith, Garrick, Armstrong and the celebrated Mrs. Macauley. He was most familiar with Mr. Laughlin McLean, the accredited agent of Mahomed Ali, Nabob of Arcot, who instructed him in the details of the dispute between his client and the Company. Boyd then took up the Nabob's cause in a series of letters that appeared in Woodfall's "Public Advertiser" in 1777, and this led to his accompanying Lord Macartney, Governor of Madras to Madras, as Second Secretary in 1781. Before he left England the Junius controversy was at its height and his letters to Woodfall gave rise to a widely indulged opinion that he was Junius. Pitt stated his strong belief in it, and recounted an incident of their having jointly reported an Irish debate where Boyd's account of Colonel Barré's speech reminded him in spirit, point, and sarcasm so strongly of Junius that he always retained the conviction that the piece proceeded from no other pen. Boyd accompanied Sir Edward Hughes' Expedition to Trincomalee and conducted a mission to the King of Kandy. On his way back from Ceylon he was captured by Suffrein's fleet and imprisoned at the Isle of Bourbon for several months. After his liberation he lived for some time at Calcutta, but was recalled to Madras as Master Attendant in 1781. In 1792 he started the "Madras Courier" and in the following year projected the "Indian Observer", a series of papers on morals and literature, and founded a weekly journal "Hircarrah" (i.e., messenger) as a vehicle for the essays. In spite of his Master Attendantship, which brought him 200 star pagodas a month and the profits of his literary work, Boyd became involved on account of his convivial habits and want of prudence. In 1794 he proposed to publish by subscription an account of his embassy to Kandy, and had actually begun the work when he was carried off by an attack of fever. His claims to a place in the History of English literature rest very much on the assumption, maintained by Almon and by George Chalmers, that he was the veritable Junius. It is remarkable that he never contradicted this conjecture. Letters reached him addressed "Junius Boyd, Esq.," and a copy of Junius superbly bound was kept upon his table, with its pages filled with pencil marks and references to living names and characters. In 1767 he married Miss Frances Morphy, and on the death of his maternal uncle assumed the name of Boyd. His tombstone has now disappeared; but Urquhart devotes five pages of prose and verse to his memory.

There is an interesting article styled Hugh Boyd of Madras, the Reputed Junius in the Asiatic Journal of October 1834.

Miss Maria Rosalie Boyd married on 9th October 1816, James Baillie Pender, Surgeon. (Asiatic Journal, July 1817).

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, FORT ST. GEORGE.

- 396 11th May GEORGE LORD PIGOT. "In memoriam."
1777.

A granite slab bearing this inscription was placed by order of the Duke of Buckingham over a grave and lead-encased coffin discovered in 1875 while digging the tomb of Lord Hobart in the church. The coffin is supposed to be that of Lord Pigot, who died while a prisoner in the hands of his Council. The vestry records prove that permission was given to bury his body in the church. He had been confined under care of Major (afterwards General) Mathew Horne, R.A., at St. Thomas' Mount, probably in the Moss House, and was brought to Madras for change of air. George Pigot joined the service as writer in 1736. When serving at Fort St. David, he was sent with Clive to Trichinopoly in charge of a convoy, and both narrowly escaped capture. He succeeded Thomas Saunders as Governor in 1755 and successfully defended the city against Lally. In 1763 he retired upon a fortune of 40 lacs, and purchased an Irish peerage. He was persuaded by the Directors to return to Madras as Governor for the second time in 1775 and found himself at variance with his Council over the reinstatement of the Tanjore Rajah. The notorious Paul Benfield, who later on in his career, is credited with having returned nine members to Parliament, demanded settlement of a claim of 23 lacs, which by a majority of seven to five the Council decided to be valid. Pigot thereupon suspended first two and then four more of his Councillors and ordered the arrest of Sir Robert Fletcher, Commander-in-Chief. The opposition immediately assumed the Government and Pigot was arrested by Colonel James Stuart on the 24th April 1776. He died in confinement the following May. He was owner of the celebrated Pigot diamond, of which there is a model in the British Museum. This stone was sold in 1819 for £30,000 to Ali Pasha, who when mortally wounded by Reshid Pasha (February 5th, 1822) had it crushed to powder in his presence. There is a curious picture of Lord Pigot, signed by G. Willison, 1777, in the Durbar room of the Tanjore Palace. Fame is blowing a trumpet, which she holds with one hand, while she supports in the other a portrait of Pigot. Below her is a mourning female. On the pedestal which supports the oval frame of the portrait is inscribed, "Siege of Madras raised February 17th, 1759. Died May 11th, 1777."

Born on 4th March 1719, the eldest son of Richard Pigot of Westminster by his wife Frances, George Pigot joined the East India Company's Civil Service at the age of 17 and arrived at Madras in July 1737. His securities were his two brothers, Robert and Hugh Pigot who entered the army and navy respectively. The former rose to be General and the latter Admiral. There was also a Captain Charles Pigot who was commander of the Delphin.

George Pigot appears to have been in 1740 a clerk to the vestry of St. Mary's Parish in addition to being a merchant in Company's service. The duty of the vestry clerk was to record the minutes of the vestry meetings, to draft the letters, to keep a record of all receipts and payments of money and to balance the accounts monthly. (pp. 534-5 of The Church in Madras, by Rev. Frank Penny.)

Pigot was unmarried. On his death the Irish barony became extinct, while the baronetcy devolved upon his brother Robert Pigot. He left several natural children among others (1) Sophia Pigot who married on 14th March 1776, the Hon. Edw. Monckton of Somerford, Staffordshire, and died on 1st January 1834, (2) Richard Pigot (1774-1868) General in the Army and Colonel of the 4th Dragoon Guards, (3) Sir Hugh Pigot, K.C.B. (1775-1857), admiral of the White and (4) Leonara, who married 17th October 1777 Claud Russel, member of the Madras Council. To the memory of her and her husband there is a tablet in Marylebone Church.

- 397 23rd Sept. SIR JOHN BURGOYNE, In memory of Major-General SIR JOHN BURGOYNE, Bart., 1785. Bart. Colonel of His Majesty's 23rd Regiment of Light Dragoons, who died September 23rd 1785, aged 45 years.

Seventh baronet and cousin of Sir John Burgoyne, K.C.B., dramatist and General, who surrendered in 1777 at Saratoga. In 1781 he was commissioned to raise a regiment of light dragoons for service in India, the first European cavalry sent out to that country. This corps, originally known as the 23rd Light Dragoons, was formed out of drafts from other regiments. Standards, now in possession of the 19th Hussars, were presented to it by George III, and early in 1782 it embarked on board the East India fleet under convoy of Admiral Sir R. Bickerton, and landed at Madras towards the end of the year. Under its changed name of the 19th Light Dragoons it subsequently won great renown on Indian battlefields. Colonel Floyd, father-in-law of Lady (Robert) Peel, was its most celebrated commander (see No. 2698). In September 1783 when General Stuart was dismissed from service for systematic disobedience of orders, Major-General Sir John Burgoyne, who was the next Senior Officer was appointed to command the King's forces but he declined to recognise Stuart's disposition and Colonel Ross Lang was appointed to the command of the army. Burgoyne, refusing to obey Ross Lang, was arrested and subsequently tried for mutiny, a crime of which he was honourably acquitted (Love III—242).

Artillery, who was killed at the Attack of the Pettah Gate of Bangalore on the seventh day of March Anno Domini

"The body was deposited in the gallery close to the spot where Sir Eyre Coote was buried"—the patron of his rising fame. The funeral party was commanded by Lt. Col. Collins composed of H.M.'s 14th Regiment of Hanoverians and the 22nd Battalion of Coast Infantry.

Musgrave, the 'Grand Lodge of Madras with their Jewels', the Chief mourners, Pall bearers and members of the Grand Lodge wearing black silk scarves and Hat Bands. Forty-seven minute guns corresponding with the age of the deceased were fired. Party of 100 Hanoverians under Major De Spangenberg fired 3 rounds. Cortego entered Fort by Wallajah Gate. Chaplains were Millingechamp Senior, Archdeacon Leslie and Dr. Bell.

Calcutta Gazette, Thursday May 27th 1784: Private letters from Madras mention that the Cavalry at Arnee had mutinied but that Captain Moorehead (sic) and forty artillery having boldly rescued the guns under a heavy fire from the mutineers, there was no doubt of their being soon reduced into submission. The Nabob's troops are taken into the Company's Service. The European Officers come in the youngest of their rank.

Moorhouse is said to have risen from the ranks, and had greatly distinguished himself at the siege of Carangooly (January 1781), at the battle of Porto Novo (July 1781) and at the siege of Cuddalore (June 1785). His services were so highly thought of by the Madras Government that, on receipt of the news of his death, the following General Order was published, March 22nd, 1791:—"Government having received advice of the death of Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph Moorhouse, who was killed in the assault of the Pettah at Bangalore on the 7th instant, it has been resolved as a testimony of respect to the memory of an officer who has served the Company many years with zeal, spirit and ability, that his remains, with the permission of the ministers and churchwardens, be publicly interred in the Church of Fort St. George, at the Company's expense, and a marble tablet fixed over his grave with a suitable inscription in commemoration of his merits." The monument was executed in England by C. Peart London (ram of battering ram). It is of white marble and represents Britannia seated on a lion, crowning a medallion head of Moorhouse with laurel. His death at the storming of Bangalore forms the subject of a picture by Robert Home. "Colonel Moorhouse, beyond comparison the most valuable officer in the army received 2 wounds the last of which proved mortal and put an end to his life in half an hour." Munro Vol. I. p. 110, Gleig's Life. Moorhouse was married on October 31st, 1785, at St. Mary's Church to Augusta, second and youngest daughter of the Rev. André Boisdelaune. His age at the time of death was 47. His widow became the 2nd wife of Lord Audley who died 24th August 1818 at Sundridge Lodge in Wiltshire, aged 60 and was preceded by his only son Hon. John Tuchet.

399	7th Aug. 1796.	MARGARETTA BARON- NESS HOBART and JOHN HOBART.	Sacred to the memory of MARGARETTA BARONESS HOBART, and her infant son JOHN HOBART, whose remains are here deposited in the same grave. The doom of the affectionate mother was irrevocably fixed, when her child expired, and having struggled for a few months on account of those, whom She has left to deplore her loss, She departed this life on the 7th of August 1796, in the 41st year of her age.

Lord Hobart, who gave his name to Hobart Town, Tasmania, was Governor of Madras from 1794 to 1798. He married on January 4th, 1792, Margaretta, daughter and co-heiress of Edmund Bourke, Esq., of Urrey, and widow of Thomas Adderley, of Innishannon, County Cork. Their daughter became the wife of the first Earl of Ripon. On March 30, 1796, Captain Allan Hyde Gardner afterwards second Lord Gardner married Margaret daughter of Thomas Adderley of Innishannon County Cork by Margaret daughter of Edmund Bourke of Urrey. She divorced him and married secondly Henry Judis. In 1799 Lord Hobart married secondly Eleanor Eden, daughter of the first Lord Auckland. Her sister, the Hon. Emily Eden, wrote the well-known Letters "Up the Country" and gave her name to the Eden Gardens at Calcutta. Lord Hobart's portrait is in the drawing room of Government House, Madras.

400	13th Feb. 1798.	FREDERICK CHRIS- TIAN SWARTZ.	For a sketch of Lord Hobart's life see also Dictionary of National Biography and Asiatic Journal, January 1817. Sacred to the memory of the REV. FREDERICK CHRISTIAN SWARTZ, whose life was one continued effort to imitate the example of his Blessed Master, Employed as a Protestant missionary from the Government of Denmark, and in the same character by the Society in England for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge, he, during a period of fifty years, "went about doing good," manifesting in respect to himself the most entire abstraction from temporal views, but embracing every opportunity of promoting both the temporal and eternal welfare of others. In him religion appeared not with a gloomy aspect, or forbidding mien, but with a graceful form and placid dignity. Among the many fruits of his indefatigable labours was the erection of the church at Tanjore. The savings from a small salary were, for many years, devoted to the pious work and the remainder of the expense supplied by individuals at his solicitation. The Christian seminaries at Ramanadpuram and in the Tinnevely province were established by him. Beloved and honored by Europeans, he was, if possible, held in still deeper reverence by the natives of this country of every degree and every sect, and their unbounded confidence in his integrity and truth was on many occasions rendered highly beneficial to the public service. The poor and the injured looked up to him as an unfailing friend and advocate. The great and powerful concurred in yielding him the highest homage ever paid in this quarter of the globe to European virtue. The late Hyder Ally Cawn, in the midst of a bloody and vindictive war with the Carnatic, sent orders to his officers "to permit the Venerable Father Swartz to pass unmolested and show him respect and kindness, for he is a holy man and means no harm to my Government." The late Tuljajee, Rajah of Tanjore, when on his death-bed desired to entrust to his protecting care his adopted son Serfojee, the present Rajah, with the administration of all the affairs of his country. On a spot of ground granted to him by the same Prince, two miles east of Tanjore, he built a house for his residence and made it an orphan asylum. Here the last 20 years of his life were spent in the education and religious instruction of children, particularly those of indigent parents, whom he gratuitously maintained and instructed. And here on the 13th of February 1798, surrounded by his infant flock and in the presence of several of his disconsolate brethren, entreating them to continue to make religion the first object of their care and imploring with his last breath the Divine blessing on their labours, he closed his truly Christian career in the 72nd year of his age. The East India Company, anxious to perpetuate the memory of such transcendent worth, and gratefully sensible of the public benefits which resulted from its influence, caused this monument to be erected. Ann. Dom. 1807.

The monument was erected by J. Bacon, Junior Sculptor, London 1806. Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature—Mark Ch. XVI—Verse 18.

Swartz was one of the most devoted missionaries India has ever seen. C. F. Schwartz was a native of Sonnenberg in Brandenburg; graduate at Halle; arrived 1750; went to Trichinopoly

1762; to Tanjore 1778 where he died. A monument by Flaxman at Tanjore represents Rajah Serfojee holding the dying man's hand and receiving his blessing. Below are the following lines composed by the Rajah himself. They are the first attempt at English versification by a Hindoo prince (see No. 2548):—

"Firm wast thou, humble and wise,
Honest, pure, free from disguise;
Father of orphans, the widow's support,
Comfort in sorrow of every sort.
To the benighted, dispenser of light,
Doing and pointing to that which is right,
Blessing to princes, to people, to me;
May I, my father, be worthy of thee;
Wisheth and prayeth thy Serfojee."

Serfojee died on the 8th March 1832 in his fifty-fourth year.

"Gericke and most of the missionaries usually termed Swartz 'our good and venerable father.' In 1793 he paid his last visit to Madras, left it on 20th September 1793. He seldom spoke of Madras but as Sodom and Gomorah." (Taylor, p. 77). Swartz was successively Chaplain, Vakeel, guardian, envoy and political commissioner. Flout me who may, I will maintain that he was not the model of a good missionary. He was a great and good man, born for great things and singularly made use of in Providence to accomplish them. (Taylor, p. 25).

For a sketch of his life and works see Asiatic Journal of July 1834.

401 2nd Oct. CHRISTIAN WILLIAM
1803. ——— GERICKE.

Sacred to the memory of the Revd. CHRISTIAN WILLIAM GERICKE. Destined to labour in a peculiar vineyard (that of the conversion of the natives of office) he fulfilled his sacred office with primitive simplicity and purity. Worthy associate of the Venerable SWARTZ, like him, he toiled thro' life with sedulous but temperate zeal, to plant in every accessible soil the pure spirit of Christianity. Pagans, uninstructed Christians, and especially their children, were the object of his unceasing labours of faith and love. He was called to receive the eternal reward of his patient and unwearied course of usefulness, in the year of our Lord 1803, aged 62 years.

The monument is by Flaxman and represents Gericke teaching. The monument is a neat unpretending work by Flaxman. It represents a minister addressing a native in a pensive attitude from an open book, and the word 'believe' is above. Three children of different height are looking up to the speaker. The inscription is beneath and the whole in white marble. It is in the north west corner of the building and ceases to be in the proper place.

He was a native of Colberg in Pomerania; graduated at Halle; arrived 1767; joined Hutteman at Cuddalore 1767; succeeded Fabricius at Madras 1788. He died at Vellore, October 2nd, 1803, and is buried in the family vault at Vepery. He left 1,500 pagodas besides valuable house property to the S. P. C. K. His daughter Dorothea Sophia married John Hunter, and died May 22nd, 1796, in her 20th year (No. 629). Gericke says in his will: "My greatest troubles have occurred during the last seven years. My daughter Dorothea Sophia Hunter died aged 20, and my son Captain George Frederick aged 30" (at Ongole, May 16th, 1801). Gericke's wife was a Miss Sophia Hutteman who died 12th July 1807 (see No. 1627).

Swartz called him a sincere Christian and a Nathaniel in whom there is no guile. Swartz and Gericke were in a minor sort of way Luther and Melancthon. As a preacher in various languages perhaps none in the country exceeded him. He went up the country on his travels as he used, once a year, at a considerable expense to himself, to diffuse the knowledge of the gospel of Christ and save his fellow creatures and while thus serving his Creator the King of Terrors seized him and without a groan translated him to a happy eternity. He died on the road a short distance from Vellore in the 38th year of his missionary life and 62nd year of his age. Soon after his return from the South he had been attacked with fever of which he recovered. He was taken with a bowel complaint which he thought might be removed by change of air. But returning from Rayacottah to Vellore, his disorder increased, rendering him unable to proceed.

The Reverend Archdeacon RICHARD LESLIE, M.A., departed this life on the 28th day of June 1804, aged 58 years. His remains are interred in the burial ground of the parish and this monument is erected by the unanimous voice of the parishioners of Madras as a token of respect to his memory. He discharged the office of a minister in Fort St. George for more than twenty years with fidelity and correctness and during the whole period enjoyed the confidence and esteem of the community at large. His gentleness of manners, his modesty and humility were exemplary, and his whole deportment such as became the character of a true minister of the Gospel of Christ.

See No. 268.

The monument is by Flaxman. It was sent out from England by the express order of the Vestry of Madras. Piety is exhibited by a female figure with the Holy Bible in her hand which she is attentively studying under which is the inscription. His father was James Leslie Bishop of Limerick and created him Archdeacon of Aghadoe in the diocese of Ardferd on 4th October 1769. He matriculated at Wadham College, Oxford, in 1765 but did not proceed to a degree.

403 9th Nov. JOSIAH WEBBE ..

To the memory of JOSIAH WEBBE, Esquire, for many years Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras, and afterwards Resident at the Court of Scindia, where he died the 9th of November 1804, aged 37 years. His mind by nature, firm, lofty, energetic, was formed by classical study to a tone of independence and patriotism not unworthy of the best days of Greece and Rome. Disdaining the little arts of private influence or vulgar popularity, and erect in conscious integrity, he rested his claims to public honours on public merit. An extensive knowledge of the Eastern languages forwarded his rise to stations of high trust, where his ambition was fired to exalt the honour and interests of his country. But in the midst of a career thus useful and distinguished, preferring the public weal to personal safety, he fell a martyr to an ungenial climate in the prime of life, beloved with fervour by his friends, particularly lamented by the Governors of India, admired and regretted by all. To his public and private virtues this monument is dedicated by his friends.

A fine monument by Flaxman representing an officer, a civil servant, a Mahomedan and a Hindu mourning over a portrait medallion of the deceased. At the base is a recumbent tiger. "Sree" Webbe was the one of most famous "politicals" Madras has produced. He entered the service as writer on July 26, 1783 and for several years filled the office of Chief Secretary. 'A statesman, a scholar and a friend'.

In 1803 he was Resident at Mysore, and in 1804, Resident at the Court of Scindia. He died at Hussangabad on the banks of the Nerbudda. The well-known Purnaiya, Dewan of Mysore,

In memory of Jane Amelia, wife of Henry Russell, and second daughter of J. H. Casamaijor, who was born August 20th, 1789, married October 20th, 1808, and died December 29th, 1808.

And now, Lord, what wait I for ?

My hope is in Thee.

Could I, dear Saint, to this cold Stone impart
Each deep Impression on thy Husband's Heart :
Could I in Language to my Sorrow just Record this last Sad Tribute to thy Dust :
E'en Strangers then, who read the faithful Line,
Should pause in solemn Silence at thy Shrine :
Should mourn with me my late espoused Bride,
Untimely severd from her RUSSELL's side,
In Joy's first Dawn, in early Beauty's Bloom,
Torn from the nuptial Altar to the Tomb.
Then should they see thee, lovely in thy Youth,
Serene in Virtue, dignified in Truth,
Firm without Rashness, gentle without Fear,
Sedate tho' cheerful, polish'd yet sincere.
So wise, so soft : so gay, yet so resign'd.
So fair in Person and so pure in Mind.
Should here contemplate with admiring Eye.
A Model how to live : alas ! and how to die.

The monument is by James Bacon, Junior Sculptor, London and represents a death-bed scene. J. H. Casamaijor, Member of Council, was the eldest son of Noah Casamaijor and Rebecca, daughter of Captain John Powney (No. 97) and was born January 3rd, 1746. His second daughter married Mr. (afterwards Sir) Henry Russell, of the Bengal Civil Service, eldest son of Sir Henry Russell, Bart. Chief Justice of Bengal, the uncle of Rose Aylmer, who died at his house in Russell Street, Calcutta. Of Sir Henry Russell (1783–1852), second baronet, who was Resident of Hyderabad in 1810, Lord Wellesley said that he was the most promising young man he knew. He married secondly at Hyderabad on 13 November 1816 Marie Clotilde, daughter of Baron Mottot, Seigneur de la Motte et de la Fontaine in Picardy (see No. 907).

His character derived its brightest honors from that union of conciliation and firmness, which after contributing to terminate a successful war, was eminently displayed in diffusing the blessings of peace over a numerous native population, who without being subject to British rule, felt the protecting influence of British counsels in the mild administration of authority which succeeded the usurpation of Mysore. He was Resident at Mysore till 1801, being then transferred to Poona, where he concluded with the Peishwa the treaty of Bassein, the ultimate consequence of which was the destruction of the Mahratta power. He retired in 1811. Mount-stuart Elphinstone wrote of him, "I doubt whether such an assembly of manly virtues remains behind him. A strong, erect and handy frame, a clear head and vigorous understanding, fixed principles, unshaken courage, contempt for pomp and pleasure, entire devotion to the public service, formed the character of Sir Barry Close—a character one would rather think imagined in ancient Rome than met within our own age and nation." Close was an intimate friend of Wilks, who dedicated his history of Mysore to him and there describes him as "having mastered the logic, the ethics and the metaphysics of Greece through the medium of the Arabic and Persian languages." The town of Closepett in Mysore was so called in honour of him. There is an engraving of this monument in Neill's "History of the First Madras European Regiment," page 404. will live for ever in the annals of his country, but in the affectionate memory of his friends were lost in the recollection of his private virtues.

Cousin of Lord Hood and younger brother of Captain Alexander Hood, R. N., who fell in action between the Mars and the French seventy-four Hercule off the Bec du Raz, April 21st, 1798. In Butleigh Church, Somerset, is a very long and not too felicitous epitaph upon the three Hood brothers by Southey, whose brother Thomas, a midshipman on board the Mars had been severely wounded in the engagement. In 1831 a column 130 feet high was erected on a hill near Butleigh to the memory of Sir Samuel Hood. The lines of Southey which refer to him are—

“ One brother yet

Survived with Keppel and with Rodney train'd
In battles, with the Lord of Nile approved,
Ere in command he worthily upheld
Old England's high prerogative. In the east,
The west, the Baltic and the Midland Seas,
Yea, wheresoever hostile fleets have plough'd
The ensanguined deep, his thunders have been heard,
His flag in brave defiance hath been seen;
And bravest enemies at Sir Samuel's name
Felt fatal presage in their inmost heart,
Of unavertible defeat foredoom'd.
Thus in the path of glory he rode on,
Victorious alway, adding praise to praise:
Till full of honours not of years, beneath
The venom of the infected clime he sank
On Coromandel's coast, completing there
His service, only when his life was spent.”

Lady Hood was a daughter of Lord Seaforth. In August 1811 Sir Walter Scott sent out by her a long letter of introduction to his brother-in-law Charles Carpenter, then Commercial Resident at Cuddalore (No. 2315).

410 26th Nov. CHARLES ROBERT
1816. ROSS.

CHARLES ROBERT ROSS of the Madras Civil Service departed this life on the 26th of November 1816, at the early age of thirty-three years. “ But wisdom is the grey hair unto men and an unspotted life is old age.” He filled his station with dignity and honor, yet, humbly exercised himself “ to have alway a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men,” charitable, benevolent, frank and generous, his breast glowed with universal philanthropy. He was a dutiful son, an affectionate brother, a sincere friend: an unspeakable kindness flowed from his heart, regulated his actions, and inspired reciprocal goodwill. In his public and private affairs, integrity was his guide, and while he did justice to his employers, he protected and supported the fellow-creatures committed to his charge. The natives of the Kurpah Collectorate will long cherish his memory and mourn his loss. Deservedly distinguished by his superiors, he advanced rapidly on the road to preferment, but, in the midst of health and in the bloom of life, he was called to a better world. A consistent Christian, it is humbly hoped he is gone to receive the reward promised by the Redeemer to his faithful servants. This monument is erected by a friend, to whom the remembrance of his virtues will ever be dear and sacred.

The monument is by J. Bacon. It bears masonic symbols and the pelican representation of self-sacrifice. Ross, Zillah Collector third son of General Patrick Ross died at Masulipatam at the house of G. E. Russell, the Collector. He entered the service in 1800, and was for six years Collector of Cuddapah.

			He was in 1800 writer, in 1804 Register of the Southern Division of Arcot, in 1805 Sub-Collector in the Southern Division of Arcot, in 1808 Head Assistant to the Collector in Arcot, and in 1810 Collector of Cuddapah. The old spelling Kurpah still survives in the expression "Kurpah indigo." George Edward Russell, whose mother was a daughter of Lord Pigot, acted as Governor of Madras in 1837 and he died on 20th October 1863. (see Nos. 1906, 1908).
411	18th May 1818.	THOMAS DAVIES JOHN WILLIAM NATTES.	To record the loss of Lieutenant THOMAS DAVIES who fell at the siege of Mallegaon in Candeish on the 18th of May 1818; and of Lieutenant JOHN WILLIAM NATTES, killed at the same siege eleven days afterwards, this monument was erected by their brother officers of the Madras Engineers. The first of these brave men intrepid and indefatigable, had displayed on this as on former occasions at Mauritius and at Naugpoor, a courage which no peril could abate, while he evinced great judgment and resource in difficulty and danger. The latter of tenderer growth succeeding to the same department, has testified the same zeal for the service, and had obtained the admiration of those who witnessed in him professional acquirements and early maturing talents with a coolness and resolution that would have honoured age and experience.  The monument is by Bacon and represents the siege of Mallegaon. Captain Kennedy, 17th Native Infantry, and Lieutenant Wilkinson and Ensign Eagar, 13th Native Infantry, were killed on the same occasion. On 29th October 1818 died at Malligaum near the Camp in Candeish Lieut. James Anderson M. E. R. eldest son of the late Rev. John Anderson, minister.
412	1st Mar. 1819.	MARGARET ELLIOT.	To the memory of MARGARET, wife of the Right Hon. HUGH ELLIOT, Governor of Madras. She died March 1st 1819.  Bishop Middleton arrived on his second visitation from Calcutta to Madras on 27th February, "the very evening Mrs. Elliot the Governour's lady died". "A Corpulent Cheerful very influential lady." "It is out of my province to add more". The Bishop officiated at the funeral the following evening. (Taylor, p. 182.) The date given by Taylor seems to be a mistake. The date of death given in the Madras Almanac is 1st Mar.; and Rev. Malden's List of burials gives the date of burial as 2nd March 1819. She was a Miss Jones and his second wife. A description of her funeral is given in the Asiatic Journal of September 1819.  The Right Hon'ble Hugh Elliot, the younger brother of the first Earl of Minto, Governor-General of India, was the second son of Sir Gilbert Elliot, third Baronet. Among other children of Sir Gilbert's was Eleanor who married, in 1776, William first Lord Auckland and was the mother of George second Lord Auckland, who was Governor-General of India (1836-1841). Mr. Hugh Elliot entered the diplomatic service in early life. He soon attained the rank of a Privy Councillor. He was appointed Governor of Madras in 1814, the year after the brother's retirement, in succession to Sir George Barlow. Mr. Elliot was married twice. Firstly to a foreign lady, Charlotte, widow of M. von Krauth, from whom he obtained a divorce in 1793; and secondly to Miss Margaret Jones. She died in Madras. By his first wife Mr. Elliot had one daughter, Isabella, who married Mr. George Payne, in 1810 and died in 1826. By his second wife he had six sons and three daughters. The sons were (1) Henry, who entered the Army and died in 1842; (2) Edward Francis, a former Chief Magistrate of Police, Madras, who was a terror to the rowdies of his time. In the early thirties he brought to book three notorious burglars and saw them hanged. Tradition gives their names as Bava Sahib, Dasari Munian and Rottikara Venkatachalam. The road from the Mount Road to the Beach, between the Cathedral and Capper House, is called after this gentleman, "Edward Elliot's Road." Mr. Edward Elliot retired in 1856, and died in 1866; (3) Gilbert, Dean of Bristol, died in 1891; (4) Charles, K. C. B. was Admiral and some time Governor of St. Helena; he died in 1875; (5) Hugh Maximilian, was a Captain in the 17th Lancers, and died in 1826; and (6) Thomas Frederick, K. C. M. G., was one time Under Secretary of State for the Colonies. And the daughters were (1) Emma, who married Sir Thomas Hislop, G. C. B., Commander in Chief of Madras in 1823; they had an only daughter, Emma Eleanor Elizabeth who married William Hugh, 3rd Earl of Minto, in 1844, and was mother of the Viceroy, Earl of Minto; this Lady died in 1882; (2) Harriet Agnes married Admiral Sir J. H. Plumridge in 1835 and died in 1845; and Caroline married General Sir W. F. Forster, K. H., and died in 1878. "Elliot's Beach," on the south side of the Adyar River is so named, not from Mr. Hugh Elliot, the Governor of Madras, but from Mr. (afterwards Sir) Walter Elliot, who was a prominent member of the Madras Government, during the Administration of Lord Harris (1854-59). Sir Walter belonged to the same stock and was probably descended from Gilbert Elliot of Stobs, the common ancestor of the Elliots of Minto and of General George Elliot, Baron Heathfield, the gallant defender of Gibraltar against the united fleets and armies of France and Spain. Sir Walter wrote on a vast range of subjects, archæology, natural history and numismatics, and was in correspondence with the celebrated Charles Darwin. The Amravathi marbles in the British Museum were presented to that institution by Sir Walter. He died in 1877.

The Countess of Minto, the distinguished recipient of the Kaisar-i-Hind Medal, in recognition of her charity and benevolence towards suffering humanity, comes from a fine stock. She is the grand-daughter of Charles second Earl Grey, who was first Lord of the Treasury (1830-34) during the first Administration of King William IV. Lord Macaulay, writing in 1840, refers to this eminent statesman, in the following words. "But those who, within the last ten years, have listened with delight, till the morning sun shone on the tapestries of the House of Lords, to the lofty and animated eloquence of Charles Earl Grey, are able to form some estimate of the powers of a race of men, among whom he was not the foremost."

- 413 11th Dec. SIR ALEXANDER Here are deposited the remains of General SIR ALEXANDER 1824. CAMPBELL, Bart. CAMPBELL, Bart. and K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army. Died 11th December 1824, aged 64 years.
Also of Olympia his first wife, daughter of Sir John Mors-head, Bart. of Trenant Park, Cornwall, who died 24th December 1794, aged 38 years. The tablet was erected by their grandsons, Sir Alexander Cockburn Campbell, Bart., and Lieut.-General George Alexander Malcolm, C.B.

He entered the British Army as early as the year 1776. He was appointed an ensign in the Royals, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in the same corps, 25th December 1778. In the month of April 1780, he obtained a company in the 97th Regiment of Foot, and served in that corps at the celebrated siege of Gibraltar, in 1782. He was soon afterwards placed upon half-pay; but in December 1787 he was attached to the 74th regiment. He became major by brevet in 1794, and obtained a majority in the before-named regiment in the succeeding year. Soon after he had risen to the rank of lieutenant-colonel (4th December 1795), he accompanied the 74th to India, and rendered himself very conspicuous in the Mysore war, and at the capture of Seringapatam in 1799. One exploit which he performed upon this occasion, and which created great confusion in the Sultan's army, was an attack upon a circular work, from which he dislodged the enemy with great gallantry, pursuing them across the bridge of communication, and entering the island with the fugitives. He came upon the right of the Sultan's entrenched camp, where he bayoneted some of the enemy in their tents, and spiked several guns.

He attained the rank of colonel in the army in September 1803; and when the present Duke of Wellington commenced his campaigns in Spain, Col. Campbell served in his army with the rank of brigadier-general.

In the arduous conflicts which attended the commencement of that war, so gloriously terminated, Brigadier Campbell greatly distinguished himself; but particularly at the severe and well contested battle of Talavera, 27th July 1809.

Upon that occasion he was posted in a commanding spot of ground between the two armies. When the enemy had been defeated on other points, he commenced a desperate attack upon General Campbell's position. The result is best expressed in the concise but flattering words of the Duke of Wellington: "This attack was most successfully repulsed by Brig. Gen. A. Campbell, who took the enemy's cannon; and I was highly satisfied with the manner in which this part of the position was defended."

In the general orders published at home soon after this action his Majesty, in communicating his approbation of the conduct of the several general and other officers at the battle of Talavera, observed that the instances of their previous gallantry had not escaped him; and a comment upon this remark subsequently appeared in a list of the names of officers, to whom a medal was awarded for their distinguished services at Roleia, Vimiera, Corunna, and Talavera, among which we find that of Brigadier General Campbell.

In December 1809, Col. Campbell obtained the colonelcy of the York Light Infantry Volunteers; and in July 1810, he was advanced to the rank of major general.

At the actions of Casal Nova and Foy d' Aronce, in March 1811, Major Gen. Campbell found new opportunities of distinguishing himself; and his name is mentioned in the despatches of the commander of the combined army with commendation.

Next year he was appointed to the commander-in-chief of the forces at the island of Mauritius; and was made lieut.-general in June 1814. He returned to England in 1819; and was appointed, in the latter end of 1820, to the post of commander-in-chief of the army at the Presidency of Fort St. George, with the rank of full general in the East-Indies.

In November 1824, General Campbell suffered an attack of apoplexy; he partially recovered, and great hopes were entertained that he would be enabled to overcome the effects of it; but a further attack terminated his life on the 11th December, in the sixty-fifth year of his age.

Every testimony of respect towards his memory was manifested by the Government and the army. At the funeral, which took place in the ensuing day, the governor and members of council at Fort St. George officiated as pall-bearers; minute-guns were fired from the fort-battery; and nearly the whole of the gentlemen of the society of the presidency joined the procession, which was accompanied by a vast concourse of natives.

The Government General Orders, dated the 11th day of December, contained the following tribute to the memory of the deceased general:

"With much grief the Hon. the Governor in Council announces to the army the demise of His Exo. General Sir Alexander Campbell, Bart, K. C. B. Commander-in-Chief at this Presidency, which took place this morning at eight o'clock a.m. Sir A. Campbell's close connexion with the army of Fort St. George, and his cordial attachment to it, which had subsisted for a period of thirty years, were confirmed by his share in some of its most honourable achievements, and completed by the high station which he filled at the termination of his distinguished career."

General Campbell was a Baronet, and a Knight Commander of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath. He was twice married: first to Miss Morshead, sister of Sir John Morshead, Bart., of Trenant Park, Cornwall, by whom he had two sons (both of whom fell in action) and three daughters. The eldest daughter Olympia married Alexander Cockburn, Esq., of Madras and perished at sea. The second daughter Charlotte married Major General Sir John Malcolm, G. C. B., of Hyde Hall, Sawbridgeworth. The youngest married Lieut. Col. Macdonald Kinnair. Sir Alexander's second wife, was a daughter of the late Rev. Thomas Pemberton, and by her he had a daughter. The baronetcy descended by special provision to the issue of his daughters successively. (Asiatic Journal: June 1825.)

414 25th July H. H. PEPPER,
1826. EDMUND CONRY,
J. CURSHAM,
J. C. STEDMAN,
T. J. ADAMS.

To Lt.-Col. HERCULES HENRY PEPPER, 34th Light Infantry, who died at Fort St. George, 25th July 1826, aged 42, distinguished on various occasions by a rare energy of character and ardent zeal and devoted gallantry. These qualities he particularly displayed whilst commanding a brigade of the Madras Army in Pegu in the Burmese war. And to Lt.-Col. CONRY, 3rd Lt. Infantry, Captain CURSHAM, 1st Eur. Regt., Captain STEDMAN, 34th Lt. Infantry, Lieut. ADAMS, 8th Lt. Infantry, who animated with the same spirit and emulating the example of their intrepid leader were killed at Setong in January 1826. This monument is raised by several of their friends in the Coast Army.

The monument was made by Mr. George Clarke of Covent Garden a young artist of great merit. The monument is a military figure larger than life in the uniform of the Light Infantry of the Madras army, with a cloak thrown loosely over the shoulder. (Asiatic Journal: Aug. 1830.)

Captain John Cambridge Stedman of 34th Regiment, Chicacole Light Infantry, commanding centre column of attack, and Captain Cursham were killed at the capture of the Setong stockade (midway between Shewgun and Martaban) on the 11th January 1826. "The fire from the enemy was most heavy and destructive and the obstacles to be surmounted by our troops were of no common kind; every man having been up to his neck in water while crossing the creek." Colonel Conry and Lieutenant Adams were killed on the 7th in a preliminary attack which failed. Colonel Pepper was slightly wounded and died in Madras six months afterwards. This monument is a statue of him by G. Clarke, "the Birmingham Chantry." Stedman was son of Lieutenant-Colonel John Gabriel Stedman (1744-97), author of the well-known work on Surinam, who married firstly Joanna, a native of Surinam and secondly Adriana Louisa, daughter of Adrian Wiertz von Coehorn, grand-daughter of General Baron Wiertz Van Coehorn, the celebrated military engineer. John Stedman's daughter by his second wife Sophia Charlotte married John Cotton, C.S. October 10th, 1807, at Negapatam, and their son Captain J. S. Cotton died at Chittoor, October 17th, 1843 (No. 1157).

Of 25 officers present, 2 were killed and 5 wounded, one dangerously shot. Our gallant leader Capt. Cursham fell outside the stockade shot through the heart by a musket ball.

"The two officers killed were Captains Cursham and Stedman both Commanding columns. I must not omit to mention that both the columns did their work admirably throughout especially the centre one commanded by Mr. Stedman and led by the light company of the 1st Madras Europeans. They were obstinately opposed but being ably and closely supported by the 34th light infantry bore all down before them. There was a very abrupt ascent to climb and up which to drag the ladder. On reaching the summit Stedman fell pierced by a dozen balls, having received the contents of overloaded swivel in his breast. To this command I believe must be added the honour of first entering Sittong, Lt. Chambers of the 1st M. F. R. gallantly leading the way." On Sept. 11, 1809 at Negapatam, the lady of J. Cotton, Esq., gave birth to a daughter. Mrs. William Stedman died July 1806 in Bombay.

| 415 | 6th July1827. | SIR THOMAS MUNRO,Bart. | Near this stone are deposited the remains of Major-General SIR THOMAS MUNRO, Bart., K.C.B., Governor of the Presidency of Fort St. George, who after 47 years of distinguished civil and military services, seven of which he passed at the head of that Government under which he first served as a cadet, was suddenly called from his labours on the 6th of July 1827 at a moment "when," in the language of the Honorable Court of Directors, "he was on the point of returning to his native land in the enjoyment of well-earned honors from his Sovereign and from the Company, having recently manifested a new proof of his zeal and devotion in retaining charge of the Government of Madras after he had intimated his wish to retire therefrom and at a period when the political state of India rendered the discharge of the duties of that high and honorable station "peculiarly arduous and important." Aetat. 65. Sir Thomas Munro was from the earliest period of his career remarkable amongst other men. All those who were associated with him at the commencement of his service, many of whom have since become illustrious in the annals of India and of their country, yielded to him with common consent that pre-eminence which belonged to the ascendancy of his character. The resources of his mind rose superior to every emergency of civil government or military enterprise, and he united to these great qualities an unpretending modesty (that exalted sign of innate worth) which courted no applause and which would have obstructed his advancement had not his transcendent merits in the cabinet and in the field forced him into public notice and elevated him to the highest office of this Presidency. |

Of him Canning said "Europe never produced a more accomplished statesman nor India, so fertile in heroes, a more skilful soldier." He died of cholera at Patticondah, near Gooty, when making a farewell tour through the Ceded Districts on the eve of his retirement from the Government. His remains were brought to Madras in 1831 and re-interred in St. Mary's Church, Fort St. George on 21st April 1831. There is an equestrian statue of him by Chantrey on the Island, and a portrait by Sir Martin Archer Shee in the Banqueting Hall. For an account of the Sepoys' Salute to this statue, See H. Hervey's 'Ten years in India' III. p. 257. He married Jane, daughter of Richard Campbell, of Craigie, county Ayrshire, whose picture by Lawrence hangs in the drawing room of Government House. Munro's father was a Glasgow merchant trading to Virginia. His nephew John Collins Munro, Sub-Collector of the Southern Mahratta Doab, was killed together with St. John Thackeray, Principal Collector, at the reduction of Kittoor, October 23rd, 1824 (see No. 1661).

Munro Bridge, Chetput, was named after Sir Thomas Munro, during whose Governorship it was built.

the campaign he was made a Knight Commander of the Bath and received the thanks of the House of Commons. In 1833 he became Military Secretary to Lord William Bentinck, returning to England with him on his retirement from the Governor-Generalship in 1835. While in England, he challenged Sir William Napier to a duel on account of the slur he considered Napier had cast upon the Spanish troops in his "History of the War in the Peninsula"; but the quarrel was amicably settled. In 1836 he was appointed to command the forces in the Windward and Leeward Islands; and three years later, in September 1839, he was offered and accepted the Command-in-Chief at Madras. 430	7th Nov. 1847.	SIR JOHN DOVETON.	Sacred to the memory of Lieutenant General SIR JOHN DOVETON, G.C.B., of the Honorable East India Company's Service who departed this life on the 7th November A.D. 1847 aged 77 years in the hope of a blessed immortality.

Of the many Anglo-Indian Families closely connected with the city of Madras, the Doveton family is one of the most well known. This is partly due to the magnificent style in which Sir John Doveton, the Commander-in-Chief, lived, and partly to the association of his name with the Doveton College. Born in 1770, the son of Mr. Frederick Doveton, a merchant of London, John Doveton arrived in India in 1783, when only 13 years of age. He was present at most of the important actions that were fought during the wars of the eighteenth century in Southern India. He assisted Colonel Wellesley in the pursuit of the notorious brigand, Dhoondia Waugh, for which he received the Colonel's thanks. Another pursuit in which he distinguished himself was that of the Peishwa, Baji Rao, in 1818 which led to his surrender. This march produced a profound impression at the time. "The long and close pursuit," wrote Sir Thomas Munro, "by the Force under Brigadier General Doveton, was the immediate cause of the breaking up of his (the Peishwa's) army. He was not allowed time to rest or to feed his horses." Baji Rao was heard to say to his Minister something more than that:—"As for General Smith" (who had been pursuing his defeat at Ashtee in 1817), "I don't care about him. I can turn him and drop him whenever I please; but as for that little fellow, General Doveton, he keeps so close to me that I can scarce call a halt my own." The last great military service Doveton rendered was in the taking of the hill fortress of Assirghur, in 1819 in which he was assisted by Sir John Malcolm. Doveton being the senior of the two, settled the plan of attack, which was completely successful. For this he received the thanks of the Governor-General, who requested him to accept his "warmest thanks for the vigour, spirit, skill and judgment of his operations," to which His Excellency mainly attributed his rapid success. He also received the thanks of the Commander-in-Chief of Madras and of both Houses of Parliament. He was created a C.B. on the 14th October 1818, and a K.C.B. on the 26th November, 1819. On the 12th August of the latter year, he was promoted Major-General, but resigned the Command of the Hyderabad Contingent, which he was instrumental in raising, and returned to Madras in the following year, when the Governor-General issued a most flattering General Order to the troops of the three Presidencies. In 1821, Doveton was placed in Command of the Ceded Districts, and not long afterwards commanded the Centre Division of the Madras Army, with Cuddalore as his Headquarters. The Judge's bungalow at the latter Station is still known after him, and was built by him about 1825. Between 1832 and 1852, he occupied what are now the Tindivanam Sub-Collector's office and bungalow, which latter he built.

From January to March, 1826, he acted as Commander-in-Chief of Madras, pending the arrival of Sir George Walker. He resigned his Command in 1829, but early in 1837 he was promoted Lieutenant-General, and on the 10th March following created a G.C.B. After his retirement, he lived in that fine building in Nungambaukam, which is now known after him as Doveton House, and was the residence of Sir Ralph Benson. It is said to have been built by Mr. Benjamin Roebuck, a former Madras Civilian and uncle of the great Parliamentarian. Many of the older Indians in and around Egmore still remember the magnificent style in which the General lived here. He lived, it is said, the life of a Brahmin, though he received European visitors and was President of the Madras Club for two successive years (1834–1835). He had a complete establishment including an Apothecary, in his own house and several Brahmin families lived in the grounds, and all the children born in it bore, and their descendants of to-day still bear, Doveton as a suffix to their Hindu names. He was a highly charitable man, and when he died, on the 7th November, 1847, his house was filled with all classes of Indians, and the funeral procession, it has been remarked, was swelled to unmanageable proportions by them. It was attended by the leading citizens of Madras; including the Marquis of Tweeddale, the Governor and Commander in Chief. He was buried in St. Mary's Church, Fort St. George, between Sir Alexander Campbell, and Sir Thomas Munro, and the inscription on his tomb-stone is a simple one, recording nothing more than his age and date of death. The major portion of his property he left to his Brahmin Steward, who had accompanied him in all his wanderings, and whose many descendants still retain the prenomen of Doveton.

A cousin of Sir John, usually styled "Senior" was the other Sir John Doveton, the son of Sir William Webber Doveton, who is described in old Madras Almanacs as "Junior." He was born about 1783, and joined the East India Company's Military Service in 1798. He became A.D.C. to the Marquis of Wellesley, while Governor-General of India, and saw service in the campaign of 1799–1803 against the Mahrattas, as also in that of 1817. In 1833, he commanded a Division in the Nizam's Contingent—raised by his cousin—and was created a K.C.B. in 1838, and a General in 1854. He died on the 23rd September, 1857. Sir John (Senior) had a brother in the Madras Military Service. This was Sir Michael Doveton, who entered the 7th Madras Cavalry, through his brother's influence. While a Major, he distinguished himself greatly in the earlier stages of the pursuit of the Peishwa by Brigadier-General Smith. He also took a prominent part in the cavalry combat at Ashtee on the 20th May 1818, in which Gokla was killed, with immense loss, and was thanked in the Orders of the day. He successively became C.B. and K.C.B. and retired to England, where he died. Another brother of Sir John (Senior) was Sir William Doveton a Governor of St. Helena when it was a possession of the East India Company.

Sir Michael Doveton's natural son was John Doveton, the name-father of the Doveton Colleges of Madras and Calcutta. So little is known of this member of the family that it is necessary to set down a few details about him. He was educated at the "Egmore School", the old name of the Military Male Orphan Asylum, which was established in 1789 in the old Egmore Redoubt by Dr. Andrew Bell, of whom a fine picture is given by Sir Charles Lawson in his "Memories of Madras." When he grew up he, through the influence of his uncle (Sir John, "Senior"), who had evinced a kindly interest in his early training and education, entered, in 1817, the Berar Brigade and rose to be a Captain. He commanded a squadron of Horse in the reduction of Chanda, the ancient Capital of Nagpur, in April 1818. About August of the same year he garrisoned the Nagpur country evacuated by his uncle just before the battle of Assirghur. An unfortunate circumstance soon afterwards led to his resigning the Nizam's Service.

His economical habits allowed him to save a little money in the Nizam's Service, which was augmented by a subsequent legacy left to him by Sir John (Senior). After resigning office he returned to Madras and lived a quiet and retired life. Mr. Peter Carstairs, a Eurasian gentleman of exemplary character, induced him (as his business manager) to divide his fortune between Madras and Calcutta for the support of Eurasian education. This advice was followed, and John, after appointing as his executors Mr. Carstairs and Mr. Byrne of Calcutta, with whom he had corresponded for some time, left India and "distinguished himself in London by his penurious habits on the one hand and his ultra-radicalism in Indian matters on the other." He died on the 15th October, 1854, and his bequest of about £50,000 became at once available for equal division between the Calcutta Oriental Academy (now called the Doveton College), and "a similar institution on the Coast of Coromandel," to be established within two years of his decease, failing which the moiety was to lapse to the Calcutta institution. On the 5th May, 1854, the Madras Parental Academic Institution and Doveton College was founded, and in March, 1855, the Captain's endowment was increased by Rs. 1,25,000 subscribed by the public for a Protestant College and the name of the institution was changed to the "Madras Doveton Institution and Protestant College". John Doveton had two brothers, Henry Bazott and Edward, both of whom died young. The former was a Captain in the 4th Regiment Light Cavalry, and was buried at Wallajahbad; and the latter was A.D.C. to his uncle Sir John ("Senior") and died in Calcutta on the 10th April 1823, aged 22. Both of these figure in this "List of Tombs", with John Holroyd Doveton, who rose to be Colonel of Madras Cavalry, and later British Consul at Pondicherry, where he lies buried.

The Officer in charge of Tipoo's sons when they were hostages in 1792 was Captain Gabriel Doveton, another nephew of Sir John (Senior). He was also the person who conducted the boys back to Tippu, who received them in his camp at Devanhalli. An exceedingly interesting account of the interview that Tippu granted to him at the time is to be found in Wilk's "History of Mysore" while a contemporary description of it may be read in the pages of that old Madras paper, the Hircarrah. The hostages were sent back on the 26th February, 1793, and the Hircarrah gave the following account of their ceremonial reception by Tippu:—

"There was nothing pompous or magnificent about the tent, not even a single ornament in it; notwithstanding there was something charming and agreeable in the plain and neat aspect it wore. The Sultan sat in the centre, between the pillars of the tent, reclining a little, with his right side on a very low muenad or cushion, covered with red velvet, embroidered with gold. His seat was not much above the level of the floor, covered like the cushion. At his right hand lay his sword with an enamelled hilt, and in a red velvet scabbard. The Princes sat at a little distance behind him on his right. His principal ministers and officers ranged in two lines, fronting each other; Captain Doveton, to whom the Sultan was very attentive, on the right; and Gholam Ally, in his silver chair, very near him on the same side. The two Princes made a very interesting appearance, elegantly and neatly dressed. The Sultan's dress was perfectly plain, without jewels, or any ornament. He wore a deep red turban, of the same form worn by the Princes; his gown of plain muslin, and a dagger in his girdle. All his great men were in the same style of dress; and no reserve or timidity among them, but all perfectly at their ease and cheerful."

The presents given to the Princes in Madras before their departure were many and varied. One of these, given by Sir Charles Oakley, the Governor, was "a very complete and comprehensive philosophical apparatus, procured from the Rev. Dr. Bell, who sent also the person hitherto employed by him in the management and use of it." Two very elegant pocket books from Lady Oakley were, we are told, received with particular pleasure by the young Princes. The Nawab's present included two palankeens, finished in the most costly manner and of the finest workmanship. This palankeen was taken at the fall of Seringapatam and became part of the prize money. This same Officer—Captain Gabriel Doveton—was deputed by Lord Cornwallis to interview Tippu on the eve of the last Mysore War, and it was he whom Tippu wanted to be despatched to him, "slightly attended or unattended."

Near Rayacotta in Salem district may be seen Doveton's well, close to the mausoleum built by Major Glover. Doveton House, Nungambaukam, otherwise known as Commander-in-Chief's House, where the Gaekwar of Baroda was confined (see No. 1471), belonged to him, and was named after him. In the Dictionary of National Biography he is said to have been born in 1768.

TABLETS IN ST. GEORGE'S CATHEDRAL.

Sir James Lillyman Caldwell (died June 28, 1868) planned St. George's Cathedral, his design being executed by Major de Havilland. Rev. W. Taylor calls this in his 'Memoir of the first centenary of the Earliest Protestant Mission at Madras' (p. 130) the new Church on Choultry Plain: it was consecrated on 4th January 1816 by Bishop Middleton who thought the new Church handsomer than anyone in England. It was termed St. George's Church.

John Mousley was the son of John Mousley of Boswell in the county of Warwick. Born 1771, Matriculated at Trinity College, Oxford, 26th January 1793; graduated, B.A., 1800; M.A., 1802; Fellow of Balliol, 1802—16; B.D. and D.D. (by decree) 28 May 1818. He was appointed Chaplain in 1810; served with the Arcot brigade in 1811 and officiated as Junior Presidency Chaplain at St. Mary's, Fort St. George. In 1812 he became the 1st Archdeacon of Madras.

There is a tribute to his memory in the Asiatic Journal of March 1820 and it is stated in it, that at a meeting of gentlemen who knew him well, held on 24 September 1819, with Sir John Newbolt in the chair it was resolved that a monument be created to commemorate the public and private virtues of Dr. Mousely. A Committee was appointed to complete this design and subscription opened for receiving sums of not less than 30 nor more than 600 rupees. The Asiatic Journal of June 1820 records that another meeting was held on Saturday November 20, when it was reported that the subscriptions amounted to 3115 rupees. The Committee resolved that 500 rupees should be appropriated to the erection of a plain granite tombstone and pedestal over the grave. It was also resolved that application should be immediately made to John Flaxman, R.A., to furnish the Committee with two or three designs of Mural Monument to be placed in St. George's Church. The tablet was to be graced by a Latin inscription from the pen of the Bishop of Calcutta.

Pause here and think ; a monitory rhyme
 Demands one moment of thy fleeting time ;
 Consult life's silent clock, thy bounding vein ;
 Seems it to say—"health here has long to reign ?"
 Hast thou the vigour of thy youth? an eye
 That beams delight ? a heart untaught to sigh ?
 Yet fear ; Youth, oft times healthful, and at ease,
 Anticipates a day it never sees ;

Heber's last public act was to confirm Indian Christians in the Fort Church at Trichinopoly. He is here represented by Chantrey in the attitude of laying on of hands. Southey's ode on a Portrait of Heber contains a passage which might have been written as a description of this monument.

" Native believers wept for thankfulness,
When on their heads he laid his hallowing hands ;
And if the saints in bliss
Be cognizant of aught that passeth here,
It was a joy for Schwartz
To look from Paradise that hour
Upon his earthly flock."

468 9th June JANE KINDERSLEY.
1831.

To the memory of JANE the beloved wife of NATHANIEL WILLIAM KINDERSLEY, Esq., of the Madras Civil Service, who died at Ootacamund 9th June 1831, aged 26. The universal prepossession excited by her gentle benevolent and cheerful demeanour ripened into love and esteem ; as it was found to spring from christian charity, christian humility and that peace which the world cannot give. Strict integrity and singleness of heart marked her words and actions. Her warm affections and exquisite sensibility were controlled by sound sense. To be beloved, her only wish, was necessary to her existence. The removal of this amiable being was as sudden as it was premature. But in the remembrance of her unaffected piety and purity of heart, she has left to her husband the consolatory reflection that though unexpected, she was not unprepared to attend the awful summons.

Mr. Nathaniel William Kindersley was Writer in 1814 and was second member of the Board of Revenue in 1843. In 1844 he proceeded on furlough and resigned the service on 1st June. He died in England on 3rd December 1844.

Mr. Kindersley was the son of Nathaniel Edward Kindersley, M. C. S., 1779-1805. He married Miss Jane Cairness Elliott, July 30th, 1825. On the same slab is inscribed a memorial to Emma, wife of John Robert Kindersley, M. C. S., born October 9th, 1832, died July 6th, 1875 (see No. 2602).

Nathaniel E. Kindersley married at Jagernaikporam Mrs. Hannah Wasey (widow) on July 3, 1786. Rev. H. L. Loring A. M. Fellow of St. Mary Magdalene College Oxford and Archdeacon of Calcutta married at St. George's Church, Henrietta Louisa Aurora, third daughter of N. E. His rare professional merits and private virtues soon raised him to the honourable and responsible offices which he held at the time of his lamented death of Surgeon to the Governor's Body Guard and Physician to the Durbar of his Highness the Nabob of the Carnatic. Obiit A.D. 1832, an. aetat 35. A few of his sorrowing and admiring friends have joined in raising this inadequate memorial of his virtues.

470	12th Sept. 1832.	JAMES      STEPHEN LUSHINGTON.	Sacred to the memory of JAMES STEPHEN LUSHINGTON, Esq., of the Bengal Civil Service, who died at the early age of 28 years second or of the Right Honourable S. R. Lushington, M.P., late Governor of Madras, and of Anne Elizabeth, eldest daughter of George Lord Harris, late Governor of Madras. Distinguished on his first arrival in India by superior talents and acquirements and passing with rapid success through his studies in the College of Fort William, he gave early promise of that intellectual and moral worth which is recorded with admiring friendship by the pious and accomplished Heber and which his short but brilliant career in this Presidency developed and matured as the Private Secretary of the Governor. He acquired by his impartial courtesy the esteem of every branch of the public service, while his many virtues and endearing qualities secured the approbation and realized the hopes of his affectionate and bereaved father. This monument is erected by the society which he adorned as a just tribute to his departed excellence.

A fine marble statue of a young man by Flaxman, and the most noticeable monument in the Cathedral. Lushington died at Laupet near Arcot after a lingering illness. His father Stephen Rumbold Lushington was Governor of Madras (1827–1835) and had previously been in the Civil Service (1790–1807). He served as Private Secretary to General Harris, whose daughter he married December 9th, 1797, and whose life he wrote in 1840. He represented Rye and Canterbury in Parliament and died in 1868, aged 92. He was a cousin of Henry Lushington, of the Bengal Civil Service who owed his escape from death in the Black Hole to the "refreshing draughts" he drew from Holwell's shirt sleeves. Henry Lushington was afterwards Clive's Secretary, and in that capacity was the author of the Loll Cogaedqe, the famous duplicate treaty in red ink, at the foot of which Admiral Watson's signature was forged by order of Clive, for the deception of Omichund. When Watson was told of the forgery on his death bed, he is reported to have replied that, as there was so much iniquity among men, he did not wish to remain any longer among them. Henry Lushington fell in the Patna massacre of October 1763.

Lushington (Charles) na. 1785, ob. 1866. Third son of Stephen Lushington, first baronet of the name. Mr. Lushington received a writership in 1800. His service was chiefly spent in the secretariat. On his return to England he stood for Ashburton; and sat on the liberal benches in the reformed parliament, afterwards he was member for Westminster. He was the author of some treatises on church politics, and his first wife (née Gascoyne) wrote a narrative of her journey from Calcutta to Europe, by way of Egypt, in 1827–28 (London, 1829).

476	2nd Sept. and 2nd Oct. 1836.	WILLIAM GARRARD and 2nd WILLIAM GARRARD	This simple tablet recordeth the names of an affectionate husband and of a dutiful son, Lieutenant Colonel WILLIAM GARRARD and Lieutenant WILLIAM GARRARD, late of the Madras Engineers, who died at the Neilgherry Hills, the former aged 56, the latter aged 26. His virtuous son was emulating the father's bright example as a faithful servant when his days were likewise numbered. The afflicted widowed mother finds relief in this brief record.  Lieut.-Col. William Garrard joined service in 1796, was Lieut. on Jan. 1, 1803, Captain on Sep. 26, 1811 and Lieut.-Col. on April 1, 1825. He was made Brevet Colonel on Dec. 1, 1829.

the good of all classes and his high integrity of character he won the hearts of all who knew him. This monument is erected by the numerous European and Native friends to whom he was thus endeared, in testimony of their affection and esteem and as a memorial of his public and private virtues.

The monument by Weekes shows Mr. Dent at work with his moonshee. He entered the service in 1812 and is buried in Circular Road Cemetery, Calcutta. 486 9th Feb. WILLIAM GRIFFITH.

Sacred to the memory of WILLIAM GRIFFITH, Esq., F.L.S., Madras Medical Service, born at Ham in the county of Surrey, March 1810. He had attained to the highest eminence in the scientific world and was one of the most distinguished Botanists of the age. He acquired his knowledge by personal investigation in the different provinces of British India, and in the neighbouring kingdoms from the banks of the Helmund and Oxus to the Straits of Malacca, where in the capacity of Civil Assistant Surgeon he died in the 35th year of his age and the 13th year of his public service in India. His early death is deeply deplored by numerous private friends, and his loss to the cause of science elicited a public and emphatic expression of regret from the Governor-General of India. This tablet is erected as an humble tribute to his memory by a few of his medical brethren of the Madras Service.

Mr. Griffith was the first European to penetrate from Assam into Burma. In 1838-39 he accompanied the army which marched from Sind through Quetta and Kandahar to Ghazni and Cabul. His collections number as many as 9,000 species, which is by far the largest number ever obtained by individual exertions. There is a monument to him in the Botanical Gardens at Calcutta and a tablet in the great theatre of the Medical College here. He came to India on 24th Sept. 1832.

487 21st Dec. GEORGE BROADFOOT.

Sacred to the memory of Major GEORGE BROADFOOT, C. B., 34th Madras Light Infantry, of Kirkwall in the Orkneys, and of London. His valour, foresight and science mainly contributed to the success of the glorious defence of Jellalabad, and in the ensuing Affghan Campaign, he with his brave Corps of Mountain Sappers acquired enduring renown. His diplomatic and military services as Commissioner of the Tenasserim Provinces and as Governor-General's Agent on the North-West Frontier at a most important crisis of our Indian Empire called forth the eloquent eulogy of Sir H. Hardinge, that "he was as brave as he was able and second to none in all the great qualities of an accomplished officer." He fell at the battle of Ferozshahar in his 39th year, acting as aide-de-camp to the Governor-General. "Though severely wounded, he continued heroically to lead and animate the troops in the assault until mortally wounded in the Sikh camp at the moment of victory," the last of three brothers who died for their country on the battlefields of Asia. Raised by public subscription throughout the Presidency of Madras.

The career of the Battye brothers forms a splendid parallel to the career of the Broadfoots. This monument is in the vestibule and shows the deceased recumbent in full military dress, watched by two sepoy's resting on their arms reversed. It is a fine specimen of Richardson's work. Broadfoot's life was written in 1888 by his brother Major William Broadfoot.

On 4th Sept. 1906 Captain Broadfoot one of the sons of Major George Broadfoot died at Rangoon. By his death one of the last of the old hands who joined the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company in its early days was removed. He was actively employed in the Irrawaddy Flotilla Co. He did good work in advance of General Prendergast's Force in 1885 in Mandalay, and possessed a knowledge of the Irrawaddy River that was probably unsurpassed by any one.

488 10th Feb. SIR ROBERT HENRY
1846. DICK.

Sacred to the memory of Major-General SIR ROBERT HENRY DICK, K.C.B., K.C.H., of Tullymet, N.B., one of the heroes of the Peninsular war, who after distinguished services in H.M.'s 42nd Regiment Royal Highlanders, which regiment he brought out of action at Quatre Bras, closed a long and brilliant military career on the memorable field of Sobraon. Raised in grateful admiration by the public of the Presidency of Madras, where, for some time, he held the Chief Military Command.

Over the inscription is a 42nd Highlander in full uniform resting against a pedestal, on which is inscribed the battleroll of the regiment—Maida, Egypt, Alexandria, Rosetta, Busaco, Torres Vedras, Fozd'aronge, Fuentes de Onoro, Badagoz, Salamanca, Fort St. Michael, Portugal, Quatre Bras, Waterloo, Sobraon, [on the other side—Edw. Richardson Set, London 1850]. For his gallantry at Waterloo, Dick was made Lieutenant-Colonel of the 42nd Highlanders, and his appointment was ordered to date from the day of the battle.

There is a copy of the inscription at the Church of Tullymet, Perthshire in Humbley's Memoirs of a Cavalry officer (p. 50).

Neill dedicated his "Historical Record of the H.E.I. Co.'s First European Regiment (1843) By a Staff Officer." To Major-General Sir Robert Henry Dick, K.C.B., K.C.H., &c., Commander in Chief of the Forces in the Presidency of Fort St. George. This record of the Services of the oldest Regiment in the Army is most respectfully dedicated by his very faithful servant, the author.

Dick was born in India about 1785. There is a romantic story told of his parents' marriage to the effect that, when Henry Dundas and Edmund Burke were staying at Dunkeld with the Duke of Atholl, they accidentally met, while out walking, a farmer's daughter, who gave them refreshments, and, on learning who they were, begged them to help a poor doctor William Dick, to whom she was betrothed but who was too poor to marry. Dundas gave the doctor an appointment as Assistant Surgeon in the East India Company's service, whereupon he married and went to India and made a large fortune, with which he purchased on his retirement the estate of Tullymet in Perthshire. He went to India in 1781 and retired in 1802.

Robert Dick, the son of this fortunate doctor entered the army as an ensign in the 75th regiment on 22nd Nov. 1800 and was promoted Lieut. into the 62nd on 27th June 1802 and Captain into the 78th, or Rosshire Buffs, on 17 April 1804.

This tablet is erected by his numerous friends in Madras. Col. Temple was also Honorary Secretary of the Madras Club. Colonel Temple, Captain Hope, A.D.C. to Lord Napier, and two Misses McIver were drowned by the upsetting of a boat opposite "Brodie Castle" which was at the time the residence of Mr. John McIver. Mr. Harry Scudamore Bostock, Acting Agent of the P. and O. Company, was the sole survivor of the accident. But he never really got over the shock. Two years afterwards he was shipped from Bombay very ill and he died two days after landing at Southampton before reaching the home of his three sisters and brother H. L. Bostock.  Mr. John McIver was Secretary and Manager of the Bank of Madras (now Imperial Bank). He was a most genial, cheery Scotchman, much given to hospitality and a favourite with all sorts and conditions of men. His brother Alick the P. and O. Agent then, also lived with him. Mr. John never quite recovered from the shock of this catastrophe and he retired from the Bank a few years afterwards. His son Sir Lewis McIver, M.P., was in the Madras Civil Service from 1868.

By his valuable contributions to Astronomy and by his discoveries and observations of stellar phenomena, especially of minor planets and variable stars, he earned an enduring name.  Mr. Pogson was a most distinguished astronomer. He discovered twenty new variable stars and ten new minor planets—four at Oxford and six at Madras. He continued to be an earnest, sympathizing, vigilant watcher of souls. By his apostolic labours and example, he trained many native agents, brought thousands of heathen into the church of Christ, raised the character and status not of the Christians only, but also of those without the church, and won their attachment and reverence. He was born near Belfast, of Scotch parents on the 7th May 1814, and died at Kodaikanal on the 28th August 1891. His body rests beneath the chancel of Holy Trinity Church, which he built at Idaiyangudi, Tinnevely.

ST. GEORGE'S CATHEDRAL CEMETERY.

533	14th Mar. 1818.	ELIZABETH HAVILLAND.	DE ELIZABETH, the beloved wife of Major T. F. DE HAVILLAND of Engineers, and daughter of T. de Saumarez of Guernsey, Esq., Attorney-General in that Island, died at the early age of 35 years. She is gone to her God whom she served with zeal and sincerity leaving an afflicted husband and four children to mourn her loss and to emulate her example; her enlightened mind was an ornament to society in which she stood highly respected, and, in the social duties of wife, mother, daughter, sister and friend, she shone with superior virtue. These virtues emanated from a warm and affectionate heart and were confirmed in true piety—to charity ever disposed, the deserving were never sent empty away. The Almighty Disposer of events bade purity and virtue lead the way, the name of this recorded worth here sought repose ere the cemetery was completed, and the afflicted husband who was forming it for public use submitted with pious reverence to the inscrutable ways of Providence which thus made him her protector in death as in life. She stands first in the awful book and gives a date to the register.

Piott de Havilland was a distinguished civil engineer and architect. He was Civil Engineer and Architect to the Madras Government, between 1814 and 1825. He was, perhaps, the most original man of his time. He belonged to the Island of Guernsey, where he was born on April 10th, 1775, being the son of Sir Peter de Havilland, and came out to India as a Cadet in 1793 and in the same year was appointed Ensign to the Madras Engineers. In 1799 he took part in the War against Tippu, which ended in the restoration of the now ruling Dynasty of Mysore. He married Miss Elizabeth de Saumarez in 1808. (One of his children, a daughter, was born at Chittoor in Nov. 25, 1815—Asiatic Journal, July 1816.) He returned home in 1812, but came to Madras as Civil Engineer and Architect of the Presidency in 1814, in which position he continued till he left India for good in 1825. During a holiday at Guernsey in 1812, he built the Jaybourg Barracks. On his return to Madras he constructed several public works of importance, the sea wall of Madras, highly commended by Sir Thomas Munro, then Governor of Madras; the St. Andrew's Church (or Kirk), which was designed and built by him, was begun in 1818 (on the site of the old Ellis Cutcherry) and finished about 1821, "remarkable for its beauty, both as to exterior and interior"; the St. Andrew's Bridge close by the Church and the Mount Road. He also built the St. George's Cathedral in 1816 and widened the Walajah Bridge in 1820. He had a son born on 22nd June 1817 (Asiatic Journal, Jan. 1818). In 1808 while at Seringapatam he proposed to bridge the Cauvery by five brick arches 110 feet span with a rise of only 11 feet.

This proposal having been received with incredulity, he built an experimental arch in accordance with his design in his garden at Srirangapatam. It is still known as de Havilland's arch and a curious feature of it is that a man by leaping on the crown or keystone can cause the whole structure to oscillate.

He appears to have lived in the building which existed in the site of the present Madras Record office. He called his house "Egmore Retreat" and a retreat it must have been then when the S.I.R. Co., had not yet come into existence in this neighbourhood. It is not known if he built it himself. It is certain however that he owned it and lived in it up to 1819, when he advertised its sale in the Madras Courier. It is also fairly certain that his wife Mrs. De Havilland died in it. He was made Lieut-Col. in 1824. He died at Guernsey, February 23rd, 1866.

The sword, which Kirby is supposed to have taken from Tippoo, was in the possession of Major General W. D. Tompson, C. B., left to him by his grand uncle.

622	15th Jan. 1751.	PETRUS USCAN DE COJA POGUS.	Elatus famâ in auras interque nubila caput condens, hic ingres- sus solo jacet discordium conciliator, jurgiorumque placator, Armeniorum fautor columenque firmum, indigentium præsi- dium fervidumque tutamen, in publica damna detrimentaque resarciendo impendiosus, largusque rector in divina, ædesque sacras propagando haud perparce strenuus impensor PETRUS USCAN DE COJA POGUS, Armenus, cuius cor Julfæ, annos natus 70, e vita cecessit 15 Januarii 1751.

Pogose is the Armenian for Paul. Khojah is a corruption of the Persian "Khwajeh," signifying a man of distinction. Petrus was the son of Khojah Woskan or Uskan and a grandson of Khojah Pogose of Julfa. He was the most notable Armenian of his day in Madras and is said to have been at one time a Member of Council. In 1725 he built the Marmalong Bridge and in 1726 placed steps from the foot to the summit of St. Thomas' Mount. The concluding words of his epitaph "cuius cor Julfæ" refer to the bringing of his heart in a golden casket from Madras to be buried at Julfa in Ispahan. An oil-painting of the Khojah was executed at Madras in 1737 and is now in All Saviour's Cathedral at Julfa. Upon it is painted a heart, with the following distich:—

"My heart longs for home, where, should I be unable to go,
I desire that, when my last day comes, my heart be sent to my native land, so that I, Petrus Uskan, may have a grave there."

Uskan was a Catholic and had bought the ground where he lies buried and built a chapel upon it to our Lady of Miracles, making the Capuchin father Severini his executor. After his death the Madras Government put the S.P.C.K. missionaries in possession of the Church and premises.

In 1787 the Mission owned:—

"The Church at Vepery near Madras. The Mission House and a Garden belonging to it. A burying ground adjoining to the garden. Two apartments for the Portuguese and English Schoolmasters. A burying ground in the Black Town of Madras. A small house near the Mission Garden, the legacy of Mrs. Bonwyn: and a small piece of paddy field." (The Garden then extended over what is termed Church Street, including the locality of houses on its southern side). Taylor page 54.

The paddy fields were resumed by Government and Gericke was put off with free postage and a bit of ground near Korka pettah, (the Washerman's gate), since resumed as being on the esplanade.

The place on which the new Church was built (in 1816) was a garden of plantain trees. Not a trace of the old buildings remains save at the north-east corner of the premises in the form of outhouses (p. 133).

The first missionaries had acquired land on the western boundary of the Fort Esplanade. The property there was damaged or destroyed by the French under La Bourdonnais. The Government, at the instance of Admiral Boscawen, gave to the Missionary the confiscated ground and Church, and houses in lieu of the damaged property or that required for the Esplanade. It has been made a question if it was given to the Mission or to the Missionary. The reply evidently is, it was given to the Missionary for the use of the mission (p. 143). Pohle and Kohlhoff (15th November 1817 letter) never were missionaries at Madras and they had no power to

644	24th Jan. 1836.	JOHN ROTTLER ..	Rev. JOHN ROTTLER, D.D., aged 86 years and 7 months and Clara Elizabeth his wife who departed this life 27th September 1827, aged 74 years and 4 months.

Rottler was an eminent botanist as well as divine. He was greater still as a linguist, grammarian and translator. He resided in India sixty years, partly at Tranquebar and partly (1803-36) at Madras. He was a native and graduate of Strasburg and on April 27th, 1788, married at Cochin the widow of a Dutch sea captain, named Schaak. He arrived at Tranquebar in 1776; went to Madras 1803; was employed by the S.P.G. and subsequently by the S.P.C.K. 1817. He died of paralysis. (Asiatic Journal, Dec. 1832). Rottler's Lane adjoins the Vepery Church and contains a bungalow still known as "Rottler's House."

Rottler's diploma in Natural Philosophy was granted to Dr. John of Tranquebar and himself in common. It was issued under the imperial authority of Leopold 1st, by Christian Daniel Schreber, President of the imperial academy of natural curiosities and is dated at Erlanger, the 30th April 1795. Dr. Rottler was low in stature and of delicate make. A very pretty description of Swartz's garden was written by him and first appeared in Jaënicke's life. Dr. Claudius Buchannan, who saw him at Tranquebar mentioned him as a good man of retiring disposition and "deficient in energy" (Taylor's Memoir, etc., p. 111-112.)

Rev. Charles William Pæzold died on the 4th November 1817 aged 53½ years, and his remains were interred the following day, in the burial ground, adjoining the church by the Rev. Dr. Rottler (W. Taylor's Memoir of the First Centenary of the Earliest Protestant Mission at Madras, p. 133). His executors were Messrs. S. F. Zscherpel and John Heal (p. 134). Mr. Pæzold lived in the Mission House (Gericke's bequeathed one) and Dr. Rottler tenanted another house at the back of the Vepery Church (to the northern end to the mission compound as I understand it) which is not now in being (Taylor's Memoir, etc., p. 114).

ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL IN ARMENIAN STREET.

The French Capuchin mission of Madras was founded in 1642 under the sanction of Pope Urban VIII by the well-known Father Ephraim. When the friars built their Armenian street church in 1675, they inscribed the date 1642 over the gates as a public record of their first establishment in Madras, and on a later occasion (1721) when the church was repaired and the gates widened, the date was retained. The earliest Capuchins in the city were Ephraim de Nevers, Zénon de Baugé, Cosme de Giers, Jacques de Bourges, Esprit de Tours, Laurent d'Angoulême, Michel Ange de Bourges, René d'Angoulême and Thomas de Poitiers. The last named built in 1675 the church of St. Andrew within the Fort, which was confiscated and destroyed after Lally's siege (see No. 24). "On 11th May 1687 died Padre Zenone, one of the old French Padres aged 85 years, entered in the Church" (Love II-Page 46). An interesting account of Father Ephraim will be found in Tavernier. Father Ephraim came from Auxerre in the northern part of the province of Burgundy, on the banks of the Yonne and was a brother of M. de Chateau Les Bois, Counsellor of the Parliament of Paris. In 1694 died Father Ephraim after no less than fifty-two years of arduous and self-sacrificing service in Madras. In 1700 the Council dealt with a petition received from 'Padres Michel Anjo, Jacques, Espirito and Renato' regarding the recent discontinuance of certain small doles from Government which for many years were issued. Padre Michel Angelus died about the beginning of 1708 and Padre Renatus succeeded him. When Friar Paulino das Bartolomeo went to Madraspatnam in 1776-7 he stayed in the Church of St. Andrea in Ospigia dei Cappuccini where were Padre Bonaventura of Fuligno, P. Medard of Alsace and P. Marcello Allepion and 15 other friars.

“Muthu Nayakar, son of Babu Nayakar, of the Kavarais of Madras, departed this life on the 29th day of Alpisi [or the 11th of November] of the year 1751, aged over 50 years. Offer an ‘Our Father’ and a ‘Hail Mary’ for the repose of his soul.” (Translation from the Tamil.) This inscription is inserted as being the oldest in the church. The Kavarais are the same caste as the Baliias.

691 22nd Feb. ADRIAN FOURBECK. Here lyeth the body of Mr. ADRIAN FOURBECK, a merchant 1783. of this city of Madraspatnam, aged 71 years.

Half way to the Mount outside the Collector of Chingleput's residence at Lushington's Gardens is a monument with four inscriptions in English, Tamil, Persian and Latin commemorating Fourbeck's philanthropy in building a bridge. "This Bridge erected as a public benefit from a legacy bestowed by Mr. Adrian Fourbeck, a merchant of Madras, is a monument useful as lasting of the good citizen's munificent liberality.

Patrick Ross, Chief Engineer, in the year of Our Lord 1786, Major-General Sir Archibald Campbell, Knight of the most Hon'ble Order of the Bath, being then Governor of Fort St. George." "Hunc pontem publico commodo prospiciens assignatis ex testimonio pecuniis fieri mandavit Adrianus Fourbeck de civitate Madraspatnam municipalis olim et mercator. Rite fieri fecerunt testamenti eius curatores Thomas Pelling, Johannes de Fries, et Petrus Bodkin, ichnographiam suppeditante atque opus pro peritia sua ordinante Patricio Ross rei machinali apud arcem Sancti Georgii præposito A.D. The bridge referred to is a small one over the Adyar, and not the Marmalong bridge as stated in Murray's "Handbook to the Madras Presidency" (1879). The Marmalong Bridge dates from 1726 and was erected by Petrus Uscau as can be seen by the superscription upon it "hunc pontem edificari iussit pro bono publico Coja Petrus Uscau natione Armeni anno salutis MDCCXXVI." Hodges' Travels in India, p. 8 (speaking of 1780-1) "I made however among others a drawing of Marmalong Bridge which is a very modern work built as I am informed at the private expense of an Armenian Merchant. It is over a small river that runs near the Mount and falls into the sea at a little distance before the village of St. Thoma, 4 miles to the southward of Madras. The church and the dwelling houses of a few Portuguese families yet remain here." "The houses on choultry plain are many of them beautiful pieces of architecture the apartments spacious and magnificent. I know not that I ever felt more delight than in going on a visit to a family on choultry plain soon after my arrival at Madras, in the Cool of the evening after a very hot day." Frequent passage of Gun carriages over it had worn away part of the stone pavement, 1785. Uscau's Marmalong Bridge.—Love III-294. Sir Archibald Campbell, Governor from 1786 to 1789, has a resting-place in Poets' Corner Westminster Abbey. His relict Johanna Maria (Mary) died at Madras July 1800 after a short and painful illness. ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL IN ARMENIAN STREET—cont.

He amassed a fortune in the Salt Trade and devised the system of depositing Government Money and obtaining salt on 6 months credit. His grand father was an officer Joseph Cammiade in the Nizam's service, a native of Nantes, originally a bombardier on a cruiser, who deserted at Masulipatam.

700	10th Oct. 1837.	EDWARD SAMUEL MOORAT.	Within this chapel lie interred the remains of EDWARD SAMUEL MOORAT, Esq., eldest son of the late Samuel Mookartish Moorat, Esq., born 28th September 1793. His brother John Samuel Moorat, as a tribute of affection, inscribed this tablet to his memory.—R.I.P.
-----	--------------------	--------------------------	--

Edward Moorat lived in the house known as the Old College. Moorat's Gardens were lately the office of the Director of Public Instruction. They were purchased by Government for Rs. 90,000 in 1827, and on March 17, 1830 Mr. Moorat parted with the Pantheon for Rs. 28,000 which is the nucleus of the spreading block of buildings that now make up the Madras Museum. Umda Bagh, Poodoopauk also belonged to him. It was occupied by the Begum of the last titular Nawab of the Carnatic. The brothers Moorat married in 1813 two sisters, the daughters of Mr. J. S. White of Pondicherry.

Mrs. Edward Moorat gave birth to a son and heir (Asiatic Journal, February 1816).

John Samuel Moorat, Esq., of Buswill Park near Edmonton, Middlesex and of Gloucester Square, Hyde Park W., was the younger son of the Samuel Moorat of Madras by Anne daughter of Edward Raphael of Madras. He was born 1796 and married Marie Delphine, the second daughter of Joseph White of Pondicherry on June 14, 1813. Edward Samuel White married Miss Maria Virginia White, the eldest daughter of Joseph White of Pondicherry on May 13, 1813. At St. George's Church, Madras on January 27, 1817, Captain John Mayne of the Hon. Company's Ship Batavia married Mrs. T. E. White widow of Captain John White, Commissary General on the establishment, daughter of the late Chevalier de grenier de Fonclero and the then lady Chalmers (See No. 2808). Dr. John Douglas White gave his name to White's Road (Doctor White's Garden, in Poodoopauk). He obtained a grant of land in Poodoopauk in 1809 (Love iii-573). He built the house which forms the nucleus of the Madras Club.

701	13th July 1839.	ELIZABETH .. ..	Erected by T. Chavermootoo Moodelliar to the memory of his dear child ELIZABETH, god daughter of the venerable and illustrious Abbé Dubois, who departed this life on the 13th July 1839, aged 27 years, leaving her affectionate husband P. Suryahootamaroya Moodelliar with 5 children and numerous affectionate relatives to lament her loss.

The connexion of the Abbé Dubois with this family may perhaps explain the presence of his portrait in the Connemara Library, where he is painted as a white Brahmin from the West, wearing a flowing turban and holding in one hand the seven knotted bamboo staff that tradition assigns to every Hindoo pilgrim. In the presbytery of his former church at Seringapatam was preserved till quite recently the block of wood upon which this turban was daily rolled. Jean Antoine Dubois was born at Saint Remèze in 1765, ordained in the diocese of Viviers in 1792 and left France for Pondicherry in the same year. He quitted India on January 15th, 1823, and died at Paris in 1848. His relations with the family of the deceased were very intimate as may be judged from the following letter:—

“ Mon cher Chavermootoo, J' ai reçu votre lettre du 12, et je suis bien sensible à votre souvenir. Je ne sais sur quel fondement s'appuyent les personnes qui soutiennent que la religion chrétienne proscrie la distinction des castes.

Je n'ai jamais vu des preuves de cette assertion vague. J'ai toujours été persuadé que la religion chrétienne s'accommodait à tous les usages et institutions civiles des pays où elle s'introduisait; or la distinction des castes m'a toujours paru une institution purement civile dans son origine, corrompue dans la suite par des fables absurdes. Cette distinction des castes m'a paru le chef d'œuvre de la législation indienne. C'est elle qui a conservé parmi les Indiens, les sciences, les arts et la civilisation, et qui les a préservés d'un état de barbarie. Sans la distinction des castes ces peuples ne seraient pas plus avancés dans la civilisation que leurs voisins les Malais et les autres nations d'Afrique et d'Amérique qui vivent sous la même latitude. Cette distinction des castes a tant d'avantages qu'elle a existé chez la plupart des anciens peuples tels que les Egyptiens, les Israelites, etc., et qu'elle existe encore parmi les Indiens, les Arabes, les Tartares, et quant bien même la religion chrétienne deviendrait la dominante dans ces pays cy, je pense qu'il serait de l'intérêt de ces peuples de conserver toujours la distinction des castes. Lorsque vous trouverez une occasion favorable, faites moi le plaisir de présenter mes compliments respectueux au Colonel Symons. God bless you all. Yours truly, J. A. Dubois, Pondicherry, 16th July 1814."

diocesis Cassiliensis in Hibernia obiit die tertia Maii 1880.
In memoriam optimi et dilectissimi patris hoc monumentum clerus populusque Madrasten. merentes erexerunt A.D.
1881.—R.I.P.

The Fennellys were brothers and natives of Cashel in Tipperary, and had been professors at Maynooth College before commencing their missionary labours in India. A nephew was appointed (1901) Coadjutor-Bishop to Archbishop Croke (of Cashel) with right of succession. The portrait of John was painted by Simon Fonseca, and that of Stephen by John Fonseca better known as a delineator of horses. Both pictures hang in the Archbishop's House in Armenian Street, together with the portraits of Dr. O'Connor, first Irish Bishop of Madras, and of Dr. Patrick Joseph Carrw, his coadjutor Bishop of Philadelphia in Isauria (Asia Minor), who was subsequently transferred to Calcutta and died there. In the same Hall is a large oil-painting of St. Patrick, in the act of destroying the statue of Dagon and replacing it by an image of the Virgin Mary. In the foreground a snake-bitten child is held up to be healed by the Apostle of Ireland beneath whose feet the serpents and reptiles of the country are fleeing in confusion. The artist of this remarkable picture was an Italian lay brother, employed as gardener in the mother house of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate near Milan. The society has a mission in Burmah, and a curious story is told of a brother once arriving in Madras and recognising himself as having stood when a boy as model for the crozier holder to St. Patrick in this very picture.

704 14th Aug. MICHAEL GOULD ..

Of your charity pray for the soul of the late MICHAEL GOULD, Esq., LL.D., Barrister-at-Law, Administrator-General of Madras, aged 48 years.

Mr. Gould was a well-known member of Madras Society. He left considerable benefactions to the Roman Catholic community, and his likeness hangs in the Archbishop's House.

He joined service as acting clerk of the Crown and Crown Prosecutor on 1st March 1871.

CATHEDRAL OF SAN THOMÉ, MYLAPORE.

[“San Thome”, a large village situated on the sea-shore, 4 miles below Madras. When the Portuguese were powerful in India, it was a place of considerable consequence: no traces of its former masters now remain, but five or six desolate churches and the old ensign staff ‘nodding o’er the beach’.]

705	68 A.D.	SAINT THOMAS ..	Hic spectabili referente veteri traditione corpus est humatum B. THOMAE APOSTOLI, qui cum diceretur Didymus et unus esset de duodecim, lance transfixus in vicinia vitam pro fide effudit Magistri, A.D. 68. In quorum fidem Henricus primus instauratae (A.D. 1886) dioceseos Episcopus Meliaporensis, cum ecclesiam vetustam hic existentem ampliandam ab imis fundamentis de nove erigendam curasset, opere feliciter completo tabellam hanc conficiendam mandavit et ipse hic locavit 1896.  The tradition is that St. Thomas was martyred at the Mount, which bears his name, and buried at Mylapore. This memorial tablet was fixed by Monsignor Henry Reed da Silva in the centre of the new Cathedral over the crypt which is said to mark the site of the grave.

He may have been the choirmaster. He paid 8 pardaos for his tomb, the pardao being an Indian coin worth three tostoons and three vintens, i.e., about 12 annas. The curious will find a long note on pardao in the Supplement to Yule and Burnell's "Hobson-Jobson." The word pardao is a Portuguese corruption of the Sanscrit pratap "splendour, majesty," and was no doubt taken from the legend on some of the coins to which the name was applied, e.g., that of the Rajah of Ikkeri in Canara, Sri Pratapa Krishnaraya.

The third is between the Isle of Ceylon and Cape Comory and on this account the coast which runs from the said Cape to the shoals of Ramanancor and Manar is called in part, Pescaria." Mr. J. H. Boyle, of the Madras Civil Service, wrote an interesting account of the Paravars of la Pêcherie in the "Calcutta Review" for 1874, No. CXV.

The tradition goes that when the Portuguese first arrived on this coast, they were uncertain where to establish themselves; but at length saw a light which they regarded as a divine intimation. On settling, they built a church on the site of the manifestation and called it Luz, that is the Light. This stone is the oldest European inscription in India.

You have made a wrong account, and if you would reckon right, must begin again. In this case I ought to deal plainly with you, that no foreign Episcopal authority can be admitted within the limits of our jurisdiction, and that you are not Governor or Bishop of Cuddalore no more than of Madras. But as your reverence is Bishop or Governor of Meliapore, I congratulate your accession to that authority, and desire and embrace your friendly and neighbourly correspondence; in pursuance of which I acquaint your reverence that I have determined to permit Padre Gulielmus a Valle, of the order of the Theatines to reside at Cuddalore in the room of Padre Don John De Clerici deceased. ## DESCANÇÃO CHURCH, ADYAR.

Descanção means "Rest," as in the Portuguese phrase "Descançe em Paz" which is the equivalent of Requiescat in Pace. The Tamil name of this church is Yellpatha Mada Covil "the church of our Lady who gives rest to the weary" and indicates that it was the habit of the Portuguese on their way from San Thomé to the Great and Little Mounts to repose here awhile.

ARMENIAN CHURCH IN ARMENIAN STREET.
Erected in 1712, rebuilt in 1772. The bulk of the information in the notes below has been supplied by Mr. Mesroby J. Seth of Calcutta, author of the "History of the Armenians in India." The Armenians entered India in the wake of the Moghul emperors. Some of the epitaphs in the old cemetery of Agra go back to the age of Akbar.

Here lies interred the body of the noble SHAMEER SOOLTHANO MEAN, an Armenian, who was born at New Julfa on the 4th November 1723 and died here at Madras on Saturday the 13th day of June 1797, aged 74 years. (Translation.)  The site of the present Armenian Church, formerly a burial ground was granted by him in 1772. His wife, Anem, had been buried there in 1765 in the family vault. There existed at one time in Madras an oil-painting of Agah Shameer Sultan, dressed in Armenian costume, and in the national head gear with the following articles arranged before him: a pair of scissors, a yard measure; a pair of scales with small weights for weighing precious stones, and an ink pot and quill. This was adopted as the crest of the Shameer family, and is carved on all their tombstones. He had three sons, Jacob, who died at Malacca on 7th July 1774 aet. 29 (See Bland's Historical Tombstones of Malacca), Johanness, who died at Madras in 1834, aged 77, and Eleazar (No. 755), who died in 1787. His youngest daughter Mrs. Aratoon Jacob died at Madras on Sunday the 30th January 1796 and at the age of 46 years. Arrathoon Jacob died on 18th April 1804, aged 67 years and 16 days. Mrs. Anna Seth of the Armenian Nation died on 4th March 1806, aged 48 years at George town. Lieut. David Chambers, H. M. 8th Regt., married Hosanna Arrathoon on 17th Feb. 1814.  Coja Nazar Jacob Jan an inhabitant of Madras since 1702, who is mentioned in 1740 as the owner of a house in Charles Street died leaving his estate to Coja Sultan David, father of Shawmier Sultan. Sultan David's house in Charles Street, which was doubtless the building owned by Jacob Jan is an historic edifice. As the Admiralty house it eventually became the town residence of the Governor of Madras and the scene of many public entertainments. It is now the office of the Accountant General. It passed on to Shawmier after the death of his father Coja Sultan David. Richard Prince while Deputy Governor of Madras lived in it. Robert Clive also lived in it afterwards as a tenant. The house was ultimately acquired by the Company.

1820. A Sarkies de Agavally died at Calcutta, February 7th, 1736, aged 48.

Robert Burn married Susanna Satoor at Chingleput, Dec. 30, 1775.

759 9th Feb. ARRATOON SHUMA- TER ARRATOON SHUMAVON, aged 74 years.
1824. VON.

The Rev. Arratoon Shumavon (or Simeon), a native of Shiraz, published in 1794 when incumbent of the Armenian Church at Madras the first known Armenian newspaper, under the name of the "Azzdarar" or Intelligencer, which lasted for eighteen months. Its centenary was celebrated in 1816 and wrote Armenian journalists throughout the world, and in the same year the Mekhitharist religious society at Vienna published a life and portrait of the father of Armenian journalism. It was at the monastery of this order on the island of St. Lazaré near Venice, that Byron studied Armenian in 1816 and wrote to Mr. Murray, "I find the language (which is twin, the liberal and the vulgar) difficult, but not invincible; at least I hope not. I shall go on. I found it necessary to twist my mind round some severer study, and this, as being the hardest I could devise here, will be a file for the serpent." The quill pen and the inkstand used by the poet are still preserved in the monastery, and may be seen in "Byron's Room" where he studied.

There is a statue of Byron in the adjoining gardens of the Zappeion at Athens, which takes its name from the two brothers Zappa, who gave the building for the purpose of holding exhibitions of Greek industries. Byron lived a stone's throw. The Franciscan convent whence he wrote "I am living with a friar (a capuchin of course), a friar (a bandy-legged Turkish cook), two albanian savages, and a Dragoman" has long disappeared. Its site is an irregular open space surrounding the monument of Lysierates, a structure which figures in manuals of Greek art as the earliest example of Corinthian. It is columnar and about six feet in diameter, with no means of access and isolated, so that the story that it served as a study would seem at first sight to be a myth. It is explained, however, by the fact that the monument was encrusted in an angle of the convent, where it formed a sort of alcove and was used as a book closet. Dodwell who was there before Byron, has an engraving showing the arrangement in his "Classical Tour." It was a handy retreat, and there is little doubt that in it Byron wrote at least, "The Curse of Minerva" which he dated "Capuchin Convent, Athens, March 17, 1811." The scene of the depredations of the "Pictish peer" overhangs the spot. Lord Elgin in all probability saved those marbles for posterity, notwithstanding many a statue went into the lime kiln in those days.

760 21st May CORAMSEEMEE
1833. LEEMBRUGGEN.

Mrs. CORAMSEEMEE LEEMBRUGGEN who died at Negapatam. This conotaph was erected by the Madras Armenian Orphans' fund in gratitude of her unparalleled benevolence towards it.

She was born in 1778 at Surat, which at one time contained an influential colony of Armenians and where her husband was a Dutch factor. She left 40,000 rupees to the Armenian poor in Calcutta and has a monument in the Church of St. Nazareth of that place on which her Christian name is given as Hripsimah, after a celebrated Armenian martyr.

She was the wife of Robertus Henricus Leembruggen, born 1759, son of Henricus Leembruggen of Leyden (chief of the cinnamon, (Mahabadde).

JEWISH BURIAL GROUND IN MINT STREET.

The cemetery is at the Memorial Hall end of Mint Street. Urquhart calls it the Hebrew burying ground at Hoghill. His curious name has not survived, but there is a Hogtown (Pig village) in the Eurasian quarter of Vellore. A large spreading tree in this cemetery has caught hold of what is an apparent gravestone and lifted it bodily in the air. At Agra is a similar Phenomenon of a "skyed tombstone."

In the Cantonment cemetery at Agra, among the quiet graves may be witnessed to-day the last act in Nature's grim outrage on the dead. In that hallowed spot where hearts have bowed in prayer, a giant peepul tree spreading its roots with unrelenting force has, after a hundred years, exhumed all that remains of the unknown sleeper. The story of Agra's great peepul tree and its captive is told in Capt. Koble's interesting poem, "A Wondrous Tree," from which the following is quoted:—

"Beside a woman's sculptured tomb had grown
A stately palm, that drooped high o'er the stone,
Its plume-like crest, as though by grief distraught,
Meanwhile, its stem a peepul seed had caught,
Which, germinating, fragile tendrils brod,
That crept to earth, took root, gained strength, and spread
There, nourished well, they throve, waxed tough entwined,
Climbed, coalesced, contorted, coiled, combined,
Suppressed the palm till flow of sap was stopped,
And, reft of life, its branches—strangled—dropped!
Anon, a peepul tree's huge trunk there stood,
Of cording, curving, convoluting wood,
With boughs and foliage ranged wide o'erhead;
Whose girth, enlarging as the seasons sped,
Transgressed the hallowed tomb's encircling zone,
Until it touched and even grasped the stone.
Then Lo! the tree—strange innate force applied—
Enfolded in its embrace the sculptures wide,
And marvellously raised both plinth and them
To where they gleam forth now, high in the stem!"

a. 17 : Setembro 1687.

James Paiva or Pavia "a Hebrew diamond Merchant of Madras" is mentioned as "married" in a list of freemen living in Fort St. George 1686. His widow kept house for Elihu Yale during the latter years of his Governorship (1687 to 1692). Madam Hieronima Pavia is always called a Portuguese Jewess. She lies buried at the Cape of Good Hope, beside her child Charles Yale, styled son of the former Governor of Madras, and it is recorded on her tombstone that the mother came from India to be buried by her little one's side, anno 1712. (Pennant's 'Tour in Wales' l. 401). The inscription "as copied by the Dutch Governor Loten is as follows:—"Hic iacet in tumulo Carolus Yale, filius Domini Yale, quondam Gubernator Madraas —apatamias reeon Jeronimas de Paibia, iuvenis admodum inclytus virtute et etiam elegans, unigenitus suæ matris et sui patris filius unicus. Vivens ab omnibus amatus, nunc mortuus deploratus; natus fuit in Madrassapatamias et hic obiit Janry. Vicesimo tertio, anno ætatis suæ vicesimo secundo annoque Domini 17 <sup>11</sup>/<sub>12</sub> Sepulta etiam est hic mater eius Jeronima de Paibia, quæ pro amore sui filii reliquit Indiam, ut cum illo hic iaceret." Elihu Yale occupied with this lady and Mrs. Nick's one of the old houses which may still be seen on the bank of the Coom between Government House and the General Hospital. The houses stand back from the little frequented road which runs through Napier park and along the side of the river to Chintadripet Bridge. There are remains of stone and, brick work which show that the gardens were once very extensive (see Nos. 15 and 712). Jaques de Paiva, L. Domingo and De Porte, "Hebrew merchants," were among the Aldermen of Madras in 1688.

- 763 10th May ISAAC ABENDANA Here lies the body of ISAAC ABENDANA SARDO of Madras, 1709. SARDO. Hebrew merchant, who died the 10th of May anno 1709, in the 49th year of his age. (Coat of Arms.)

Abendana is referred to as a well known diamond merchant by Governor Pitt in a letter dated January 28, 1702-3 (Dalton's Pitt p. 274.)

JEWISH BURIAL GROUND IN MINT STREET— cont.
			He is said to be a Dutch Jew. He was a diamond merchant of Madras. Abendana died, appointing Thomas Pitt trustee for his estate. The Governor who was about to leave India, declined the trust and as Mrs. Abendana was illiterate, four persons were nominated, two by her and two by the councils to go through the deceased merchant's papers. (Love II, p. 7 and note 2.). Mr. Abendana's widow is referred to in the following general letter of Governor Harrison and Council to the Court of Directors, dated September 16th, 1713: "The design of creating a charity school or schools at this place is a very noble one, and worthy of the Honourable Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. We will not only be ready to adjust them with the power you have given us, but also with our purses; and do not doubt many of our inhabitants will do the same, if the persons they send out are of tempers and qualifications fit for the undertaking. But we hope they will be English and not foreigners. The Danish missionaries have not wanted for our assistance on all occasions, though we must still continue of opinion that they spend a great deal of the Society's money to little or no purpose; and though there may be some good men among them there is one very turbulent person, of whose principles you may please to judge by his contriving the escape of Mr. Abendana's widow from her creditors here to Tranquebar and marrying her though a Jew to a Christian by the way." The turbulent missionary was probably J. G. Bövingh, whose acts and whose books troubled Fenger a great deal in writing his History of the Tranquebar Mission.
764	5th June 1745.	ABRAHAM SALOMONS.	Here lieth the body of ABRAHAM SALOMONS. His diligence, industry, honesty and punctuality in all his dealings justly gained him the reputation of a good merchant; his courtesy and benevolence to all degrees of mankind made him to be both beloved and respected. After a course of XIX years residence in this place, he departed this life on the v June of the year MDCCXLV of the Christian Æra. David and Solomon Salomons in public testimony and regard to the memory of their deceased brother caused this monument to be erected. The name of the Salomons' firm crops up in the correspondence of the Nabob of Arcot. Solomon Solomons arrived in the Grantham 1739. Had free merchant's indenture. "Ephraim Isaac late a free merchant at Fort St. George complains of severe and illegal treatment received from Pigot and prays that Pigot may be ordered home in order that he may be sued in the English Courts. Pigot is to reply by the first conveyance"—Company's Despatch to Pigot March 3, 1759.

He died on the 18th of the month Yiar, A.M. 5523 (or the 11th May 1763). Several lines in Hebrew precede. Solomon Franco arrived in the Princess of Wales 17th January 1742. Had free Merchant's indentures. A Franco died at Lucknow July 1, 1799. Garden Houses of Solomon Franco and Wulsh were marked in maps of 1755 (map of 1755 for Peddannaikes Petta). The small Portuguese Church near Franco's Garden (mentioned in the siege of "Madras 1758") is probably that of the virgin in Portuguese Church Street, which, like the Cathedral in Armenian Street, bears on its portals the misleading figures 1642. Solomon Franco's house in the Fort to be used for a Hospital (Mr. Call's Report on Defence Measures). Coral was consigned to Fort St. George in 1725 on the Lynn by the five firms:—Abraham Mendes, Abraham Franks, Moses Julian, Abraham and Jacob Franco, and John Baptista Mayer. MUSEUM COMPOUND, PANTHEON ROAD.
766	16 th May 1727.	JOANNES CONSTANTINUS.	Evocade Keital 'Iwavnns . . . CONSTANTINUS qui consummatus in brevi explevit tempora multa, oriundus ex Græcia natus in Armenia obiit xvi May ætatis suæ lxi . Grati animi laboris opus monumentum hoc posuit frater eius GEORGIUS CONSTANTINUS Christianus anno domini MDCCLXXVII .

This slab was found at Messrs. Arbuthnot's Cement Works, Perambore, and is now in the Museum Gardens. The inscription is most difficult to decipher, and several lines are not readable. The stone stands in two pieces, the upper portion containing the Greek words. Its interest lies in the fact of its being the only Greek tombstone found in South India. It is considerably more ancient than any of the Greek monuments in Calcutta. The oldest epitaph there written in Greek dates from 1777, August 5th, and commemorates Alexander Argeri, of Phillipopolis, the Arabic interpreter of Cudbert Thornhill, who built a church for his countrymen in gratitude for his safe return from so many voyages. Another Greek monument of 1820 is to be found at Benares with these words: "The stranger Demetrius Galanus the Athenian to the stranger Peter Federoff, the Russian." Galanus died May 3rd, 1833, and is buried in Calcutta.

Another Greek monument of 1828 at Delhi, 16 August 1828: Michael Keryack. "Sacred to the memory of Michael Keryack 'shopkeeper in Delhie'" who departed this life on the 16th day of August 1828. Born in Vienna of Greek parentage. Aged about 46 years, erected by his friend Manuel Athanas' (Graves in old cemetery by Post office, Delhi).

THE MANILLA TROPHY.
767	6th Oct. 1762.	MONUMENT TO GENERAL DRAPER and ADMIRAL CORNISH.	BRITANNIA VICTRIX. The imperial trophies of the success of the British arms at MANILHA are erected by an order of Council in honour of the bravery of the land and sea forces on that expedition under the command of Brigadier General DRAPER and Rear Admiral CORNISH. Manilha taken by storm October VI, MDCCLXII.

This stone originally stood in the Arsenal, where a number of trophies were arranged round it in a semicircle. It is now in the compound of the Madras Museum. Sir William Draper (1721-1787) erected a cenotaph on Clifton Downs near his house to the memory of the officers of his Regiment who fell in the Carnatic and in Manilla. As several members of Draper's regiment lie buried in South Indian graveyards, the inscription finds place here. The monument consists of a raised tomb supporting a large vase surmounted by a funeral urn. On the side of the vase are the following Latin verses which do credit to their author, who was an Etonian and a Fellow of King's College, Cambridge:—

"Siste gradum, si quæ est Britonum tibi cura, viator, Siste gradum; vacuo recolas inscripta sepulcro
Tristia fata virum, quos bellicus ardor Eoum
Proh dolor! haud unquam redituros misit in orbem.
Nec tibi sit lugere pudor, si forte tuorum
Nomina sola leges, sed cum terraque marique
Invictos heroum animos et facta revolvās,
Si Patriæ te tangat amor, si fama Britannum,
Parce triumphales lacrymis aspergere lauros.
Quin si Asiæ penetrare sinus, atque ultima Gangis Pandere claustra pares, Indosque lacessere bello,
"Ex his virtutum discas verumque laborem, Fortunam ex aliis."

And beneath on a tablet: "Sacred to the memory of those departed warriors of the 79th Regiment, by whose valour, discipline and perseverance, the French land forces in Asia were first withstood and repulsed; the commerce of Great Britain preserved; her settlements rescued from impending destruction. The memorable defence of Madras, the decisive battle of Wandewash, twelve strong and important fortresses, three superb capitals, Arcot, Pondicherry, Manilla, and the Philippine Islands, are lasting monuments of their military glory. Their generous treatment of a vanquished enemy exhibits an illustrious example of true fortitude and moderation, worthy of being transmitted to latest posterity, that future generations may know humanity is the characteristic of British conquerors." The sides of the table are inscribed with the names of the officers of the 79th Regiment, who fell in Asia: "Field officers. Major Cholmondeley killed at Wandewash 22 January 1760. [He assumed command of the army after Lawrence's departure 1759 and pending the arrival of Coote], C. Brereton, J. At the ends of the tomb in small oval tables are these words: "Siege of Madras raised, February 17th 1759; Conjeveram taken by storm, April 13th 1759; Battle of Wandewash gained, January 22nd 1760; Arcot recovered, February 10th 1760; Corical taken, April 5th 1760; the lines of Pondicherry stormed, September 10th 1760; Pondicherry surrendered, January 16th 1761; Manilla taken by storm, October 6th." ## THE STATUE OF LORD CORNWALLIS.

768 Oct. 1805. LORD CORNWALLIS.

The Statue of Lord Cornwallis was inside the Fort St. George till 1906 when it was decided to remove it to a more appropriate place owing to the destructive effects of the sea air and red dust. It was at first decided by Government that the statue should remain in its former position as Mr. Gajjar, a well known Bombay scientist, to whose care the work of repair was entrusted, assured them that it would be weatherproof after the surface of the marble had been renovated. But even after renovation it was found that the sea air was again attacking it and that the surface was decaying owing to exposure to rain. The Government after mature consideration transferred the statue from its position in the Fort to one end of the large and spacious reading room of the Connemara Public Library in the compound of the Madras Museum. The marble floor on which the circular pedestal of the statue is placed, stands on a strong brick foundation. The height of the pedestal is about 5½ feet, and it has four panels, one of which bears the following inscription:—

“The statue is erected by a general vote at the joint expenditure of the principal inhabitants of Madras, and of the Civil and Military servants of the East India Company belonging to the Presidency of Fort St. George as a grateful testimony of the high sense they entertained of the conduct and actions of the most noble Marquis Cornwallis during the time he held the high offices of the Governor-General and the Commander-in-Chief of all the Forces in India.”

The other panels contain an illustrated history of Lord Cornwallis's connection with the Mysore War.

The statue was the work of the sculptor Thomas Banks of London, in 1799 and is about 9 feet high.

About the Mausoleum and Altar Tomb erected over the remains of Lord Cornwallis on the left banks of the Ganges a little above Ghazee-pore in the Benares district, information is given in Asiatic Journal of May 1824.

896	7th Jan. 1785.	CHARLES MARQUIS DE BUSSY.	Cygit CHARLES JOSEPH MARQUIS DE BUSSY ET DE CASTEL- LENOU, lieutenant général, commandant des troupes de terre et de mer de tous les établissemens français au delà du Cap de Bonne Esperance, gouverneur des établissemens français de l'Inde, décédé à Pondichéry le 7 Janvier MDCCLXXXV.

Born at Bucy near Soissons in 1718. He lost his father at an early age and inheriting nothing but his pedigree came out to the Ile de France at the time that Labourdonnais was Governor, and formed one of his expedition to India in 1746. When Labourdonnais returned to Europe, Bussy remained behind as an officer of Dupleix's army. He accompanied Muzaffar Jung to the Deccan in his disastrous expedition against the insurgent Afghan Chiefs in which the latter was killed. After his death he procured the appointment of Salabat Jung to the vacant throne of the Nizam and practically made of him a French prefect. His handful of Europeans soon became the nucleus of a powerful army. Such ascendancy aroused many enemies. During his absence in January 1753 at the coast recruiting his health, the minister Said Lashkar withheld all allowances due to his troops with a view to breaking up the force. Bussy rose from his bed and marched straight to Aurangabad, where the Court was, and obtained a cession of four provinces (afterwards known as the Northern Circars) for the pay of his corps. The following year his astonishing military success at the siege of Savanore inflamed the old resentment against him, and in 1756 Bussy and his troops were peremptorily dismissed from service. The Nizam had meantime applied to the English for assistance to drive out the French and the request was about to be granted, when the news of the capture of Calcutta diverted every British soldier northward. Bussy, after staving off an attack from Salabat Jung, regained all his old authority. He had been seven years founding the interest of his nation in the Deccan, when Lally's advent destroyed his power. He was recalled from his territories to carry out Lally's views and operations further south, in 1758. Two years later he was captured at Wandewash by Coote, but liberated in consideration of his generous treatment to English prisoners. After an absence of twenty-three years he returned to Pondicherry as Governor in 1783, but so many years of sloth and luxury had impaired his faculties, and with the treaty of Versailles all military operations ceased. It was during his sojourn in France that Orme made his acquaintance. To quote his words, "the only man of distinguished capacity who served under Dupleix was M. Bussy, and his conduct to this officer showed that he knew the value of merit, and was capable of employing it to the utmost advantage, for although M. Bussy had, by his expedition to the northward, acquired much reputation and a great fortune, he beheld his successes without the least envy, and implicitly followed his advice in all affairs of which M. Bussy, by his situation, might be a better judge than himself."

Bussy, when in France, married a niece of the Duc de Choiseul. He died on January 17th, 1785 [sic], in the evening, as he was playing at cards. Barras in his memoirs draws a very uncomplimentary picture of him after he returned to India in his old age.

Anquetil de Perron refers to the death of Bussy on p. Historique et Géographique de L'Inde Vol. III.

lines which were taken by Tippoo in 1790 and also the fort of Udayagiri, the walls of which enclose a hill, 38 miles south east of Trevandrum. He is still remembered among the natives under the name "Istach," a corruption of Eustache.

De Lannoy lies buried in the ruined Chapel of the Udayagiri Fort in South Travancore. "Lanoy" was a soldier, probably a sergeant under the Dutch at Cochin or Quilon, he deserted in 1740 to Travancore. He was later appointed Commander in Chief of Martanda Varma's disciplined forces said to have amounted to 50,000 men and served that Government for 37 years, died at the age of 62 while giving the finishing touches to the famous Travancore Lines which checked Haider Ali and Tippu.

The Right Worshipful Adriaan Moens while deprecating the desertion of De Lannoy and one Duyvenschot, considered it was due to their inability to rise to higher rank than Sergeant and blamed the system for depriving them of the services of good men and throwing them into arms of their opponents—(Dutch Records by A. Galletti, Rev. A. J. Van Der Burg & Revd. P. Groot, pages 25 and 236).

Orme in Vol. I, p. 400, under date 1755 writes "With the assistance of a French Officer named Launoy the King (of Travancore) had disciplined in the method of European infantry a body of 10,000 nairs."

"With their right flank thoroughly protected by this work (The Travancore Lines) the Travancoreans in 1762 launched themselves under their General Eustachius Benedictus de Lannoy in three divisions on the Zamorin's garrisons, extending in a long weak line into Cochin Territory at Cranganore, Paroor and Verapoly. The defeat of the Zamorin was rapidly achieved and his troops were completely and finally driven from Cochin Territory."

The name D'Lonnoi, the great Dutch Commander, who organized and disciplined the Travancore Army and fought with it against the ancient Rajahs and Chiefs of the Pandyan Kingdoms and won distinction for Travancore is a household word in Travancore, and it must be added that the first attempt at the formation of a fighting force with Western arms of warfare was his. Though a Dutchman by birth and education, after he took service under the Travancore Rajah he worked hard and well to keep up the prestige of Travancore and it was due to him that Travancore was saved on many an occasion from foreign invasion.

Never was a purer or more exalted mind that which once animated the dust that sleeps below, nor were the propensities he inherited from nature enfeebled by inaction or wasted by injudicious effort. He was a living spring of beneficence to all around him and feelings of esteem and regard were become inseparably associated with his name. In the enjoyment of honourably earned reputation and whilst fondly exulting in those newly formed ties which promised domestic bliss to his future years he sank into an untimely tomb. The officers of the corps which he commanded erected this monument as a faint tribute to his public and private worth and as a mark of their unavailing sorrow for his irreparable loss. He married at Quilon, March 2nd, 1812, a daughter of Gen. ## TRINITY CHURCH, BANGALORE.

930	20th Jan. 1845.	CLEMENT DELVES HILL.	This monument was erected by the subscription of his friends and comrades in the Madras Presidency and by the officers of the Royal Horse Guards in testimony of their love for his personal character. Modest and unassuming in mind and deportment and utterly careless to advance himself, in serving his country, his friends and every good cause, he was full of zeal and perseverance. In the campaigns of the Peninsula, whilst fighting under the command of his brother Lord Hill, he was amply satisfied with contributing to his glory, without seeking although deserving to share in his honours. He was born at Prees in Shropshire on the 6th of December 1781, died at the falls of Guersoppa on 20th January and was buried at Honawar 22nd January 1845, having been in command in Mysore from 20th November 1841.

Walter Scott the poet (1771–1832) married, December 24th, 1797, Margaret Charlotte (d. May 14th, 1826), sister of Charles Carpenter, M.C.S. (No. 2315). The deceased was his eldest son, born October 28th, 1801, and married, February 3rd, 1825, to Jane, daughter of John Jobson of Lochore, co. Fife. He died without issue on board the Wellesley off the Cape, when the baronetcy became extinct. Walter Scott's other son Charles, godson of Charles Carpenter, was educated at B.N.C., Oxford, and became attaché to the British embassy at Teheran, where he died unmarried October 28th, 1841. It is interesting to note in this connection that the second son of Dickens, Walter Landor, died in Calcutta December 31st, 1863, of Haematemesis, a cadet on the Bengal establishment. On the new year's Day 1864 he was buried in the military Cemetery Bhowanipore. The Burial Register gives his age as 24 but according to Forster's "Life of Charles Dickens" he was within a month of completing his twenty third year, and had been doing duty with the 42nd Highlanders. Dickens' sons, all had literary names; Alfred Tennyson (in Australia), Edward Bulwer Lytton (also in Australia), Henry Fielding, K. C., and Sidney Smith (in the navy; died at sea).

Mr. Henry Fielding Dickens, K. C., is the 6th son of the famous novelist, and the latter at first thought of naming him Oliver Goldsmith. Dickens certainly paid tribute to literature in the names of sons. One was named Walter Landor, another Francis Jeffrey, third Alfred Tennyson, a fourth Sydney Smith Haldimand and a fifth Edward Bulwer Lytton. Henry Fielding was something of a favourite with his father who was particularly pleased when he gained a scholarship at Cambridge. Mr. Dickens, K. C., has a son who is a barrister. Edward Bulwer Lytton, also was in Calcutta sometime. He died at Sydney at 51, after representing Wilcannia, in the New South Wales Parliament for six years. Alfred Tennyson also settled in Australia. Sidney Smith entered the navy and at 20 was buried at Sea. Francis Jeffery joined the north-west mounted police. Charles and Henry Fielding remained in their native land.

MONUMENT AT THE LAL BAGH, SERINGAPATAM.

- 947 13th Nov. 1782. WILLIAM BAILLIE .. To the memory of Colonel WILLIAM BAILLIE who, with a detachment of British troops under his command, after a noble and most gallant resistance to a superior force of the enemy on the plains of Periambaucum was ultimately compelled to surrender to the united armies of Hyder Ally and Tippoo Sultaun on the 10th day of September 1780 and died in the fortress of Seringapatam on the 13th day of November 1782. This monument is erected and inscribed by his nephew JOHN BAILLIE, Lieut.-Colonel on the establishment of Bengal and Resident at the Court of Lucknow A. D. 1816.

Monument just outside the mausoleum of Hyder and Tippoo. Periambaucum (see No. 1454), the scene of the most grievous disaster that has as yet befallen the British arms in India, is 15 miles north-east of Conjeeveram. The best account of Baillie's defeat is that given by the Hon. John Lindsay, who was himself captured, there in the "Lives of the Lindsays," volume III, page 255. The younger Lally, Pimoran and the other French officers serving with Hyder prevented much indiscriminate slaughter. The walls of the Darya Daulat Bagh (formerly Tippoo's favourite garden and subsequently the residence of the Duke of Wellington) are covered with grotesque fresco paintings of the battle. Hickey's "Gazette" of October 14th, 1780, gives the following return of officers killed, wounded and taken:—
"Killed Lieut.-Colonel Fletcher, Capts. Phillips, Ferrier, Nixon, Powell, Lieutenants & Ens. Pieler (Samuel Pictat), Wilson Sen'r (a Surgeon), Wilson Jun'r, Bowser, Wade, Bergier, Stringer, Shedden, Wood, Clark, Dawes, Cotton, Boswell, Mouneriet (?Monteith), Curtis, Maconackie, Dring, Nash, Fleming, Mackenzie, Gunn (?Gusin), Gallaway, Maclin, Lombard, Dick, Magen, Marshall, Macleod, Rogers & Frank. The late Lieutenant-Colonel John Baillie entered the service of the Honourable the East India Company in the year 1790, and arrived in India in 1791. He applied himself with great diligence to the study of the learned languages of the East ; as a proof of which it may be mentioned, that in the year 1797 at the desire of the Governor-General (Sir John Shore) he undertook the translation from the Arabic of a copious digest of Muhammadan law, so arranged as to comprise the whole of the Imamea code, as applicable to secular matters. This work it was originally contemplated would extend to four volumes in quarto but of these the first only was ever published, and that without the preliminary discourse or table of contents. It comprehends only the laws of commercial transactions.

On the establishment of the College of Fort William, Colonel Baillie was appointed professor of the Arabic and Persian languages of Muhammadan law, a post which he filled with high credit until the year 1807, when he was appointed resident at the Court of the Nawab Vizir of Oude, in place of Colonel Collins. During the period of his professorship, Colonel Baillie was twice called into active service as political agent to the Governor-General in Bundelkhund, and for the zeal and ability displayed by him in this capacity he was honoured with the public thanks of the Government. In the year 1801 he published a series of sixty fables, elucidatory of the first part of his course of lectures at the College on the inflexions of Arabic Grammar, namely the Miut Amil ; Shurhu Miut Amil ; Misbah ; Hedayet un Nuhvi ; and the Kafeca of Ebn Hajeb. In consequence of his employment in Bundelkhund, the work was not completed and indeed all further literary exertion appears to have been put a stop to by his appointment to Lucknow, where he remained till 1815. In 1818 he retired from the service and in 1823 succeeded the late Mr. Cotton as a Director of the East India Company. Colonel Baillie was a native of Inverness, and represented that district of burghs in Parliament.

On April 20, 1833 at his house in Devonshire Place Col. John Baillie in his 61st year died. He was M.P. for Inverness and succeeded John Cotton as a Director of the Company in 1823.

In Calcutta, Jan. 30, 1786 Hugh Baillie married Anna Pierre, Spinster.

In 1885 H. Wolfrath et cie of Neuchâtel printed, an "Essai historique sur le Régiment suisse de Meuron publié par le petit neveu du général de Meuron, colonel propriétaire du régiment, d'après les documents les plus importants trouvés dans les papiers de famille." This work was reviewed by General F. W. Tyrrell in the "Madras Mail" of August 29th, 1896. Only fifty copies of the book were struck off. One is in the library of M. Albert de Montet of Chardonne near Vevey, late an officer of Austrian Dragoons and a well-known writer on military history. He possesses the original copy of the author, Theodore de Meuron, 144 pages grand in octavo embellished with notes, drawings and photographs added by the compiler (now deceased) subsequent to the publication of the work.

The regiment was originally raised at Neuchâtel in 1781 by Charles Daniel, Comte de Meuron (d. 1806), who entered a Swiss regiment of marines in the French service, went through the

Seven Years' War, and was present in several sea-fights against the English in West Indian and American waters. The regiment's first masters were the Dutch East India Company, under whom they served at the Cape and in Ceylon. They then crossed bayonets with the English at the French defence of Cuddalore in 1782. Among the garrison of that little town was a young Sergeant, named Bernadotte, the future Marshal of the Empire and King of Sweden and Norway (see No. 1206). In 1795, we find de Meuron and his men once more in Ceylon, and, on the conquest of the island by the English, they transferred their allegiance without difficulty to the British Crown. Colonel de Meuron became Brigadier-General in command of the troops in Ceylon, and his officers were ranked with officers of the King's service. In the following year the regiment was transferred to the Madras establishment, and after being in garrison successively at Poonamallee, Arnee and Vellore, took part in the operations before Seringapatam, where it was brigaded with the 33rd and 73rd Foot under Colonel (afterwards Sir Arthur) Wellesley. A journal kept by Lieutenant Charles de Meuron Tribolet gives a graphic account of the campaign. The grenadier and light companies formed part of the storming column and lost 16 killed, including Lieutenant A. Matthey and Assistant Surgeon Lesser, and 60 wounded including Captains Piachaud and Lardy. A descriptive panorama of the assault was exhibited in London at the Lyceum in which Captain Lardy, the leader of the forlorn hope, figures prominently. An engraving of this curious picture may be seen in the library of the Maharaja of Durbhunga. After the fall of the fortress the regiment was stationed on the Island and subsequently at French Rocks, 7 miles away. On February 10th, 1806, it left Fort St. George for Europe, and, after successively garrisoning the Isle of Wight, Guernsey, Sicily, and Malta, found its way to Canada, where it was finally disbanded the year after Waterloo, consequent upon the reduction of the English army to a peace footing. Eighteen members of the de Meuron family had held commissions in its ranks during the thirty-five years of its history. The Colonel commanding was always a de Meuron, and the Lieutenant-Colonel generally one. Yorck, the Prussian General, who gained some celebrity in the Napoleonic wars, completed his apprenticeship to arms in this polyglot body, which at the time of its breaking up in 1816 was composed of members of almost every nationality in Europe.

Colonel Scott was placed in charge of the gun carriage works in 1800 and afterwards commanded the station. He is mentioned by Lord Valentia in 1804 as "Captain Scott, who had just exerted himself with the highest credit to establish that manufactory." His bungalow stands on the banks of the Cauvery not far from the English cemetery, and is kept up almost in the same state as when he left it in 1817 after the loss of his wife and daughters. The story of this deserted house has formed the subject of a poem in the well-known "Lays of India" by Aliph Cheem (Captain Yeldham).

"There stands on the isle of Seringapatam,

By the Cauvery, eddying fast,

A bungalow lonely,

And tenanted only

By memories of the past.

It has stood, as though under a curse or spell,

Untouched since the year that Tippoo fell.

The mouldering rooms are now as they stood

Near eighty years ago ;

The piano is there,

And table and chair,

And the carpet, rotting slow,

And the beds whereon the corpses lay,

And the curtains half time-mawed away."

Scott was a fellow officer with Wellington and fought with him in India. The bungalow has lately had several articles of the furniture taken out and has been cleaned up. The tradition is that Col. Scott came back to find his wife and 2 daughters dead of Cholera and threw himself into the river from the steps of his house. The truth is his wife died in childbirth and Scott died in London in 1833. Wellesley was only prevented from going to Egypt as 2nd in command of Baird expedition by an attack of itch (Kalji). He was detained at Bombay and the boat sailed without him. It was lost at sea with all on board. The story is told in G. W. Forrest's Sepoy Generals and in Major Price. In both books is to be found the story of the British Officer who cut off one of Tippoo's moustaches. 2 ladies in Surrey have the moustache preserved in a piece of red sash which Tippoo wore.

A lofty granite obelisk, without name or date, and these two letters only, standing at the end of a terrace, 180 feet long by 85 broad, on an eminence known as Myseram Tekedy or Monsieur Raymond's Hill, 3½ miles from Hyderabad. At the south of the platform is an edifice like a Grecian temple in which are kept the lamps and other articles used to decorate the tomb. Rude crosses in red are painted on the basement of the platform, which commands a fine view of the surrounding country. The tomb is described in Warren's "l'Inde Anglaise" (1843), and Durmsteter's Letters sur l'Inde (1888), p. 349.

His tomb lies on a hill near Usmangarh on the way to Sururnagar. It consists of a granite obelisk 23 feet high standing in the centre of an oblong platform. No inscription but simply the letters J. R. The tomb is worshipped by both Hindus and Mahomedans by the former as Musa Ram and the latter Musa Rahim.

Michel Joachim Marie Raymond was born at Serignac on the 25th September 1755. His father was a merchant, and in January 1775 the son set out from Lorient to Pondicherry with the intention of starting a corresponding house in India, but soon abandoned trade for the more exciting profession of arms and entered a corps in the service of Tippoo commanded by the Chevalier de Lassé. In 1783 he became Bussy's Aide-de-Camp, and on the latter's death two years later succeeded the younger Lally (see No. 1794) as commandant of the French cavalry, which Nizam Ali had taken over from his brother Basalat Jung and lent to Hyder for his Carnatic campaigns. Raymond gradually altered the composition of this force to an army corps of twenty sepoy battalions officered by Europeans and maintained by the revenues of an entire jaghire. His death occurred suddenly at the zenith of his fame, poisoned by his enemies at the Court of the Nizam, when he was at the head of 15,000 disciplined troops, with numerous magazines and gun foundries, one of which not unlike an immense racket court still stands near the Chudderghaut Residency. Raymond used to make his own guns and construct the foundries, the most well-known being called Top-ka-Sancha near Fateh Maidan. The French gardens in which Raymond and his officers resided and close to which the troop lines are situated are about only a mile from the hill where his tomb is. These are now held in Jaghir by some Nawab. His successor Jean Henri Piron (born at Huningue, March 25th, 1763, died at Chandernagore October 21st, 1807) was a man of little ability and six months later James Achilles Kirkpatrick, the British Resident, was able to execute a treaty with the Nizam under the terms of which the entire foreign contingent was to be disbanded. On October 20th, 1798, 14,000 men and 124 officers laid down their arms to a force of British troops under Colonel Roberts, John Malcolm, Assistant Resident, and Kirkpatrick; and the celebrated French corps of Hyderabad passed into a tradition. The name of Monsieur Raymond is still kept up in the Mysoram Regiment of irregulars, and on every anniversary of Raymond's death the tomb and platform are brilliantly illuminated and a grand fair held, which is largely attended. Salutes are fired by the Irregular troops, many of whom are descendants of Musa Rahim's famous fifteen thousand. "No European of mark who preceded him," writes Colonel Malleson, "and no European of mark who followed him in India, ever succeeded in gaining to such an extent the love, the esteem, the admiration of the natives of the country."

G. Smith Sct.

Her husband Thomas Sydenham, natus circa, 1780, was second son of Colonel W. Sydenham (No. 1366). After serving in the Mysore war as Captain of Guides, he was nominated Secretary to the residency of Hyderabad. He returned to England in 1802 and studied at Christ Church under Dean Jackson. In 1804 he again sailed for the east and was appointed first to the charge of the residency in Persia and then (1806) to that of Hyderabad. Resigning this office in 1810 he proceeded to England, was sent by Lord Wellesley on a confidential mission to the Peninsula, and became chargé d'affaires at Lisbon. In 1812 he joined the Earl of Wellington in camp, and served with him as a volunteer in the campaign of that year. He then repaired to the headquarters of the Russian army and took part, in the company of his friend Count Woronzov, in the battles of 1814. His gallantry at Craon procured him the cross of St. George from the hands of the Emperor Alexander, while Bernadotte presented him with the Swedish insignia of the Sword. On the conclusion of peace, Sydenham was appointed British envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary at Lisbon, but his career was cut short by an incurable illness at Geneva, August 28th, 1816.

There is a portrait of Sydenham in the Faluknama palace. He did not matriculate.

He was a Member of Parliament from 1865-68 and again from 1874-83. Sir George Russell, the third son and fourth baronet, was a County Court Judge from 1874 to 1885, and subsequently M. P. for Wokingham. He died in 1898, and the present baronet is his son.

The first baronet, Sir Henry Russell (1751-1836), had been Chief Justice of the Supreme Court at Fort William from 1807-1813. He was knighted in 1797 on his appointment to be a Puisne Judge at Calcutta, and was created a baronet on December 10th, 1812. He married as his second wife Anna Barbara, youngest daughter of Sir Charles Whitworth and sister of Earl Whitworth the British Ambassador at Paris, who was publicly insulted by Napoleon after the peace of Amiens. He had a family of six sons and five daughters. Three of his sons entered the Company's service. Henry the second baronet; Charles who became M. P. for Reading after leaving India and died in 1856; and Francis Whitworth, who became Salt Agent at Chittagong and died there on March 25th, 1852, in the forty-fourth year of his service. The Chief Justice named his youngest daughter Rose Aylmer, in memory of his niece, Landon's early love, who died at his house in Calcutta in 1800.

999 17th June GEORGE RUMBOLD.

GEORGE RUMBOLD, Esq., who died on the 17th day of June 1820, infinitely beloved, aged 26 years.

The Rumbolds furnish an apt illustration of Kipling's saying that certain families find their way to India generation after generation, as dolphins follow in line across the open sea. William Rumbold, of the Company's service, who was buried at Fulham on September 15th, 1728, became the father of two sons, Henry and William. Henry was Secretary to the Council at Fort William and died in Bengal, September 1st, 1743. He married Sarah Basnet at Fort St. George, August 17th, 1731. William rose to be second at Tellicherry and died in 1745. Of his three sons, William, the eldest, entered the Company's military service and died at Fort St. David on August 1st, 1757, in his twenty-eighth year; and the second, Henry, died at sea at an early age. Orme has a letter from Lt. Wm. Rumbold dated Camp near Madura 22 May 1757 describing the state of affairs at Madura (Hill, p. 109). "The follg. have died on the Coast: Lieutenants William Rumbold and John Keith and Cadet Daniel Anthony Montach." Pigot's despatch to Directors Nov. 15, 1757.

Thomas Rumbold, the youngest (1736-1791), is erroneously said to have begun life as a boots at Arthur's, fashionable gaming house in St. James' or as a tide-waiter at the London Docks. In 1752 he entered the Company's service as a Writer, but before long exchanged the civil for the military profession, as Clive had done. After serving under Lawrence in the operations round Trichinopoly in 1754, he accompanied Clive to Bengal in 1756, and for his gallantry at the siege of Calcutta received a captain's commission. He was Clive's Aide-de-Camp at the battle of Plassey and was severely wounded. Permission was given to him to revert to the civil service, and in December 1760, he was third at Chittagong. Subsequently he became Chief at Patna and from 1766 to 1769 was a Member of Council at Fort William. He had now made his fortune and returned to England. On November 26th, 1770, he took his seat in the House of Commons as member for New Shoreham. Seven years later he was appointed to succeed Lord Pigot as Governor of Fort St. George where he landed on February 8th, 1778. In the following October, Pondicherry capitulated to Sir Hector Munro, and Rumbold was created a baronet on March 23rd, 1779. On April 6th, 1780, he resigned his governorship and sailed for England. On his arrival, he was held responsible for Hyder's invasion of the Carnatic and dismissed the service of the Company by the directors. The parliamentary enquiry which ensued proved abortive: and Rumbold continued to sit in the House and play the part of a nabob until his death on November 11th, 1791. He was twice married, but left his estates to his children by his second wife, who was a daughter of Edmund Law, Bishop of Carlisle. His eldest son by his first wife, William Richard (1760–1786), was Aide-de-camp to Sir Hector Munro at the siege of Pondicherry and carried home the despatches and the colours of the fortress for presentation to the King. The second baronet, Sir George Berriman Rumbold (1764–1807), was so named after his mother, Frances Berriman, who had married Thomas Rumbold at Madras on June 22nd, 1756. She died at Calcutta in childbirth, August 22nd, 1764, aged 26. Her parents James Berriman and Frances Aspinwall were married at Fort. St. George, October 9th, 1736. G. B. Rumbold was born at Fort William on August 17th, 1764, and while Minister Resident at Hamburg in 1804, was seized by order of the French Government and conveyed as a prisoner to the Temple in Paris. He died at Memel in 1807. Two of his sons joined the banking house of Palmer & Co., and are buried at Hyderabad: George, the second, who is here commemorated, and William, the eldest, who succeeded his father in the baronetcy and died in 1833.

The Asiatic Journal (March 1834—p. 150 of Asiatic Intelligence) observes:

“We are sorry to announce the death of Sir William Rumbold, at Hyderabad, by an attack of apoplexy, in bed, on the night of the 23rd August.

“The name of Sir William Rumbold has been a good deal before the public, both here and in England, in consequence of his connexion with the firm of Palmer and Co. of Hyderabad. His retirement from that firm, previously to its ruin, was not a voluntary act, being in consequence of an order from government, withdrawing his license to reside and carry on business in the territories of the Nizam. But although he thereby escaped the responsibilities of the failure, he never ceased to protect the interests of his late partners and their constituents with the warm and active advocacy of his talents and influence at home. After an absence from India of several years, he returned in 1829 with almost unlimited powers from the creditors in England, and with the sanction of the Court of Directors, to aid in prosecuting large claims exceeding the amount of the unpaid debts of the house and considered desperate only under the adverse influence of the British authorities. Actions were brought in consequence in the Nizam's courts, and judgments were obtained; but the sinister (though erroneous) impression of government hostility still remained and the parties, being men high in office, continued to set the trustees of the house at defiance. The laws of the country were powerless against a despotic minister and relations. The vigilance of Sir William Rumbold did not fail to apprise the Board of Control of the true situation in which he found himself under the deceptive protection afforded him; and at length the head of that Board, as it is well known by the published proceedings in the matter of the Mandamus, against the opinion of a small majority in the Court of Directors took up the case of the Hyderabad House as a case of British claims upon a foreign power in which under the peculiar circumstances of foreign interference, the government stood compromised to something more than a nominal protection. It is understood, that, not long since, instructions to this effect were received in Calcutta, and that they have been acted upon by the transmission of corresponding instructions to the Resident at Hyderabad. We have also heard, that, in consequence thereof, sanguine expectations are now entertained, that very large sums will be recovered for the benefit of the estate. These hopes and the favourable position of things on which they are founded would not have existed but for the energy and talents and indefatigable zeal of Sir William Rumbold, who had the tact to engage the attention of the real rulers of India, and to enable them to see through the mystification of a very complicated affair.”

Rumbold Kote in Chudderghaut still preserves their name. With the death of William, the link which had bound the family to India for more than a century was snapped. Sir William Rumbold, third baronet, was born on May 22nd, 1787, and married at Castle Donington on July 13th, 1809, Henrietta Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Boothby, Lord Raincliffe (No. 2258). Four of his sons succeeded to the baronetcy in turn: and the baronet, Sir Horace Rumbold, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., British Ambassador at Vienna, is his fifth son.

“During the reign of Nizam Nasir ud Doulah were constructed two large houses one named Rumbold's Kothe and the other Pertomji's Kothe. R. K. was the house of Sir Wm. Rumbold who was a partner in the firm of Palmer & Co. He was a grandson of the famous Governor of Madras and came to India, with a fortune of £8000 during the viceroyalty of Lord Hastings having married a ward of that noble man's. He subsequently joined the firm of Palmer & Co. and remained a partner till its failure. Sir W. R. died here in 1833. The building is now an annexe of the King Kothe. Pertomji's Kothe is a large building standing well back from the main road erected on an immense stone basement. The erection alone of the engineering [?] works which surrounded the grounds is said to have cost a lac of rupees. The house was built by the famous Parsi bankers Pertomji & Co., who collected the revenues of Berar. They succeeded Puran Mal in 1839. In 1845 Pertomji was compelled to give up his districts. The Kothi is now named as Mohsin-ul-mulk's Kothe and was purchased by Nawab Mohsin-ul-mulk for a lac of rupees.”

"The only cloud upon the later years (1820-23) of the Marquess of Hastings' rule in India was caused by the embarrassed state of the Nizam's affairs. The great banking firm of Palmer & Co. had become a power at Hyderabad, a power which Sir Charles Metcalfe the Resident (1820-25) pronounced so dangerous that Lord Hastings was compelled to step in between the impoverished Nizam and his creditors. The claims of the former to a yearly tribute for the Northern Circars were wiped out for ever by the payment of a large sum down, most of which went to extinguish the loans due to the English bankers. A year afterwards the house of Palmer & Co. stopped payment. On the Governor-General's return to England in 1823, the Court of Proprietors passed a vote of virtual censure upon him for his conduct in the affairs of Palmer & Co. which was only softened by his acquittal of any corrupt intent. It was not until his death in 1827 that the India House made him some amends by voting £20,000 to his son."

CHUDDERGHAT CEMETERY.

1018 20th Nov. WILLIAM PALMER.
1867.

This monument contains the remains of WILLIAM PALMER, who died on 20th Nov. 1867 in his 87th year. He had been a resident of Hyderabad for nearly 70 years, where he was prominently known, and his memory requires no record. But he desires anxiously that the goodness of Hester Palmer, his wife, towards him, who survived him, should be known by this record drawn up on his deathbed. She was his comfort for the last 20 years of his life, which was involved generally in distress and difficulties. Her strong mind and good sense supported himself during his sickness, and contributed to prolong his life, and her private means were employed to maintain him in ease and comfort when he was penniless, as indeed they were subsequently to educate some of his grandchildren whom she has loved, though not connected by blood with them, as if they were her own, and which she continues to do. May the blessing of Almighty and Most Merciful God be with her and her grandchildren and us all!

"King" Palmer, son of Gen. Wm. Palmer, founded the great banking house which bore his name. He married, May 15th, 1848, Hester née Sharp, the widow of Cornelius Desormeaux, Surgeon. She was born September 1st, 1817, and died September 6th, 1877. Palmer established his house at Hyderabad in 1814, and shortly afterwards offered to relieve the Nizam's Government of the financial burden of the contingent required to keep the peace of India during the Pindari War, by lending it 2½ lacs a month for two years, the security being an assignment of the land revenue of the dominions and the rate of interest 18 per cent. This was agreed to by the Prime Minister Chandu Lall and sanctioned by the Marquis of Hastings, then Governor-General. Three years later Sir W. Rumbold joined the firm, which in 1820 advanced a loan of 60 lacs to Chandu Lall. In 1840 Mr. Palmer, then the only surviving partner, formulated an exhaustive memorandum of reforms in the Hyderabad administration, which testifies to his abilities as a statesman as well as a financier. Evil days eventually overtook him and at the time of his death pecuniary difficulties obscured the horizon. His daughter Mary by a previous marriage became the wife, on August 25th, 1831, of Meadows Taylor, the distinguished writer of Anglo-Indian Novels, who died in 1876. She died at a place called Lingusur on September 20, 1844.

The Persian inscription may be translated : “ This well was dug and faced by Major James Achilles Kirkpatrick, Hushmat Jung, Vakil of the British Government, the Honourable English Company Bahadur, for quenching the thirst of passengers and watering the fruit garden and deer paddock, 1804 A.D., 1219 A.H.” This slab is fixed above the well known as Putli Bowree overlooking the City Road running past the Residency.

James Achilles Kirkpatrick, born August 28th, 1764, was the second son of Captain James Kirkpatrick of the Madras Cavalry and his wife Katharine, née Munro. His parents were married at Madras, March 14th, 1762, and the mother died January 27th, 1766, aged 22. There is a tablet to her memory on the east wall of Bombay Cathedral. James Achilles, who was educated at Eton, entered the Madras Army, October 18th, 1780. He was invalided home within ten years, but returned in time to serve in the second Mysore campaign. In 1793 he commanded Vizianagram, and from there was appointed Persian Translator with the force serving under the Nizam. The death of Lieutenant William Stewart promoted him to be Assistant to his younger brother William, Resident at Hyderabad. Early in 1797 William was compelled to proceed to the Cape for his health, and James Achilles became Resident. He held the post for nine years and in that time negotiated three important treaties; by the most important of which a British subsidiary force was to replace Raymond's French contingent. Kirkpatrick was an extraordinary instance of an orientalised Englishman. His most famous feat was his marriage in 1800 to Khair-un-nissa Begum, granddaughter of Akil-ud-Dowlah, Buxey or Paymaster to the British Subsidiary Force. This exploit was made the subject of calumnious reports to Calcutta by Kirkpatrick's enemies, and Lord Wellesley had a searching enquiry held, the result of which was to completely exonerate Kirkpatrick from blame. Two children were born to him, and these two wells commemorate their births. Catherine Aurora Kirkpatrick, the daughter, married Captain James Winsloe Phillipps of the 7th Hussars, and died March 2nd, 1889, at the villa Sorrento Torquay. She is the "Kitty Kirkpatrick" of Carlyle's Reminiscences and according to some the Blumine of his Sartor Resartus. (Vide articles in the Nineteenth Century for September 1892 by George Strachey and in Blackwood's Magazine for July 1893 by Sir Edward Strachey.) Her brother William George died young, leaving a widow and three daughters. Chinnery's portrait of the two children in Eastern dress is now at Torquay in Mr. Paul Phillipps' house. It was formerly kept in the Rang Mahal or Zenana at the back of the Chudderghaut Residency, which Kirkpatrick built for his Indian princess. This building fell into disrepair and was finally pulled down by Sir George Yule's in the sixties. The old Residency gardener can however recall it (1901), and in Sir Salar Jung's Art Gallery is what appears to be a picture of the place. In the same collection is a portrait of James Achilles. His vernacular name was Hushmat Jung "The Magnificent in Battle," a title given him by the Nizam; and outside the principal gate of the Residency is a small grain bazaar still known as Hushmat Ganj.
